FDR ASSERTS PATROL WILL SAIL 7 SEAS

Tells Press Conference That Vessels Will Operate Wherever Necessary.

SAYS AXIS IN GREENLAND

Statement Follows Assertions By Cabinet Members on Guard For Shipping.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt declared today that American neutrality patrol vessels would operate as far into the waters of the seven seas as may be necessary for the defense of the American hemisphere.

He told a press conference, however, that the administration was not thinking of escorting convoys at this time.

Also, the chief executive said there was a possibility that Greenland was partly occupied by Axis forces. He said that he did not know about this, but agreed this statement was surprising.

He replied in the negative to a question whether occupation might be by fifth columnists.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to be drawn into specific comments designed to amplify his views on the convoy situation.

But he said that for a year and a half vessels of the neutrality patrol had been operating as far as a thousand miles into the Atlantic from the eastern shore of Maryland. He said there were erroneous reports and assumptions at the time that the patrol was operating approximately 300 miles from the American coast.

For a year and a half, Mr. Roosevelt said, the patrol has been extended here and pulled in there. It is being extended and will be extended from time to time, he asserted.

He was glad, he said, that a reporter asked how far the extension might go. It was then that he declared it would be as far into the seven seas as was necessary for hemispheric defense.

He repeated several times the thought of hemispheric defense in response to questions about the functions of the patrol. What it

Galion Man, Wife Escape as Auto Crashes Residence

GALION — Fate protected Mr. and Mrs. John Sames, 150 South Boston street, from injury and possible death last night when an automobile crashed into the living room of their home.

Because Mrs. Sames was visiting her sister, several doors away, she was not sitting in her favorite chair in the living room where she usually spends the evenings reading.

A huge piece of brick and concrete from the wall of the house, estimated to weigh 200 pounds fell into the chair usually occupied by Mrs. Sames. Sames who is generally in the room with his wife was in the kitchen when the car hurtled the curb and crashed through the brick siding of the house.

Two men living near Galion were arrested in a downtown restaurant shortly after the accident. Police said they were followed by witnesses who saw them leave the scene.

Police are holding the men for investigation. Both deny being in the car.

Proposes Half-Mill Tax Levy to Replace 'Rattle Trap' Fire Trucks

Council Group Urges Passage

Poor Operation of Equipment at Two Recent Fires Results In Action; Vote Planned for August Primary.

Aroused by the poor performance of Mansfield's "rattle trap" fire equipment in two fires during the past week, city council's finance committee today proposed a half-mill tax levy, over a five-year period, to modernize the city's fire fighting apparatus.

Councilman Fred Miller, chairman of the committee, announced plans for the levy proposal, which he estimated would produce $25,000 to $27,000 annually over the five-year period.

Under present plans, the levy question would go on the primary ballot in August.

Councilman C. N. Shultz, who with Councilman George Berg, are other members of the committee, said that a levy for a half mill extending over a period of five years was decided upon so that no great hardship would be placed upon taxpayers. Under the plan, a tax of 50 cents on each thousand dollars of property valuation would be assessed.

Miller said that City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., had been requested to prepare the necessary legislation for the May 6th meeting of council and that the committee would ask that the proposed ordinance be placed on the August primary ballot. In order to be placed on the primary ballot, it would be necessary to have the ordinance passed 60 days before the primary.

Funds raised by the levy, the committee suggests, should be used to gradually build up the city's fire equipment.

"The committee hopes that other municipal services will cooperate in this attempt to better the city's fire fighting machinery by not applying for similar levies," Miller said.

The chairman pointed out that in the vote for the one mill levy last November that too many services were included, thereby preventing passage of the levy.

Parking meter receipts, committee members believe, should provide for any future needs of the police department, one of the services included in the 1940 one mill levy program.

In that program, $17,000 for equipment and $7,500 for the salaries of four new firemen was asked. Encumbered with the many other services, the levy was beaten.

It would take 65 per cent of all votes cast at the primary to carry the issue. The committee believes that the fire equipment tax, not saddled by other service levies, would have an excellent chance to pass, according to Miller.

SET NEW ARMY REGISTRATION

Washington Indicates Those Reaching 21 Recently To Enroll June 14.

A second registration of young men for military service to include youths who have become 21 since the first registration Oct. 16 was tentatively set today for June 14, news dispatches from Washington said.

President Roosevelt will make this final decision as to the date in an executive order designating another registration day, dispatches said. It was reported that June 14, which is Flag day, is favored for the registration.

Army officials estimated that about 1,000,000 young men will be affected by the second registration. On that basis, from 300 to 400 Richland county youths would be included in the registration, selective service officials said here today.

At the first registration last October more than 9,300 men from 21 to 36 registered in the county. About 350 of them have been inducted into the army.

It was believed that a new lottery will be held to determine the order in which the 21-year-

BOMB KIEL

R. A. F. Dumps Explosives on Shipbuilding Center.

LONDON — (AP) — "Very substantial loads of bombs" were dropped on the big German shipyards of Kiel and Wilhelmshaven by the RAF last night after the planes penetrated heavy curtains of anti-aircraft fire, the Air Ministry News said today.

The two plants are Germany's largest centers of ship-building, cradles of many a German submarine and warship. Also attacked were targets all along the German-held coast, from Norway, Holland, Belgium to France, the air ministry said.

The Kiel raid was directed principally against the Germania and Deutsche Werke yards, according to the news service.

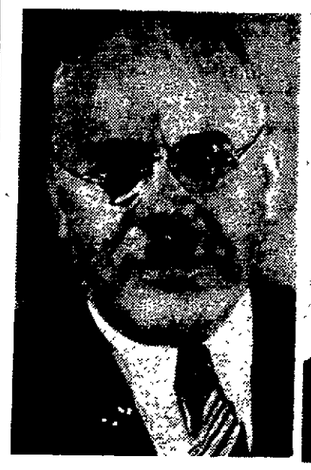
Act to End Woes of Firemen



FRED MILLER

C. N. SHULTZ

GEORGE BERG

These members of council's finance committee took the initiative in a new move to gain more efficient fire fighting equipment for Mansfield firemen by announcing that they would ask council to approve an ordinance for a half mill levy for a five-year period. The levy, if approved in the primaries in August, would raise between $25,000 and $27,000 annually for the improvement of equipment. Largely responsible for their current action was the $100,000 lumber yard fire Sunday night which threatened the city's industrial area. Thousands of Mansfielders saw firemen battle the flames with antiquated equipment. Since Sunday, three breakdowns have occurred on city fire trucks. The committee announced that the levy would only amount to a tax of 50 cents on every thousand dollars of assessed valuation.

ELECTRIC RATE MEASURE STILL IN STALEMATE

Council Committee Meets For Study of Proposed Rate Cut, Other Data.

SCHEDULES NEW SESSION

Plans To Ask Solicitor To Interpret Legal Phases of 5-Year Contract Offer.

Little headway was made at the meeting of city council's public utilities committee held last night at the municipal building to resume consideration of the proposed ordinance embodying lower domestic electric rates for Mansfield home-owners.

Russell D. Porch, chairmai, presented letters received from the state utilities commission and from the cities of Marion, Elyria, Sandusky, Lorain and Zanesville. But none of the letters, he said, could be considered as containing any of the information which the committee was seeking.

No discussion was held on the ordinance at last night's meeting. The committee studied the data gathered by Porch and decided to meet again Monday. City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., will be asked to attend the meeting to interpret the legal aspects of a five-year contract.

Porch wrote to obtain details on the various cities' experience with electric rate ordinances. Most of the cities made no comment but enclosed copies of the ordinances in effect.

The state commission told the committee that it had no information to give but that the rates for various companies could be examined at its office in Columbus. The commission also informed the committee that the Ohio Public Service company, which is offering the lower rates, could supply it with a copy of its rates in the cities it serves.

The committee studied tabulations set up by Porch from

High School Grads to Get Help While Hunting Jobs

700 In Mansfield, Shelby and Richland County Schools Being Registered for Employment In Industry.

Richland county boys and girls who graduate from high school this spring are going to have help when they go job hunting, and there will be more jobs for them to find.

In a move to place the youthful graduates in the defense industry and in jobs vacated by men who are being called for military training, the Mansfield office of the Ohio State Employment service was busy today registering nearly 700 seniors who will get their diplomas in Mansfield, Shelby, and county schools this spring.

C. W. Handley, manager of the employment office, said the pupils will first be registered by schools and then each one will be called to headquarters here for an interview.

"We are asking superintendents and principals at the schools to give us the credits and certain ratings of the pupils' ability so we can classify the graduates for the type of jobs they are fitted for," Handley said.

At the interview, pupils will be questioned about their interests and training. The information will be filed at the Employment serv-

Lord Gort Named Commander of British at Gibraltar.

LONDON — (AP) — Viscount Gort, former chief of the British imperial general staff, has been appointed governor and commander-in-chief of Gibraltar, it was officially announced today.

Lord Gort was commander-in-chief of British field forces in France until after the retreat of the British from Flanders at Dunkerque last year.

By his new appointment he exchanges jobs with Lieut-Gen. Sir Clive Liddell, who now takes Gort's job as army inspector general for training of British home forces.

The announcement comes at a time when Britain is worried that Adolf Hitler may launch an attack on her western hemisphere fortress in co-ordination with his moves at the other end of the sea.

1,400 Women Attend Closing Session of Cooking School

The Mansfield News-Journal's all-electric cooking school ended a four-day program in a grand manner at the Madison theater this morning.

Fourteen hundred women were on hand to see the final demonstration by Mrs. Mabel B. Bowen, food and home-making authority, and share in prizes awarded by merchants co-operating in the school.

Scores of requests for a school next year were received from the audience upon completion of the program today.

Emphasizing the interesting dishes that would require little time and effort on the part of the homemaker, Mrs. Bowen stressed the products and labor-saving equipment employed in the school's model kitchen.

As she stirred up a party rarebit, potato pancakes and surprise sour cream pudding she crammed her demonstration with household hints that will add flavor to meals and zest to homemaking.

Honey-peanut cookies, cranberry cashew salad, Boston orange pie, cinnamon apples were other items on the menu. All these dishes together with the usual daily prizes were awarded at the close of the school today plus the grand prizes.

Nazis In Last Drive Toward Greek Capital

B. E. F. Acknowledges Withdrawal From Pass, Claims Inflicting Severe Losses on Foe; Germans Tell Of Bombing 'Escape' Ports.

(By Associated Press)

British rearguard troops, hopelessly outnumbered, fell back from the bloody "hot gates" of Thermopylae Pass today as Adolf Hitler's invasion armies lunged forward in a final drive toward Athens, less than 100 miles away.

Hitler's high command said bluntly that Nazi units had "thrown the enemy out" of the historic pass, overcoming strongly fortified defenses where the British and a handful of Greek allies had held out for more than two days.

The German break-through came 48 hours after Nazi quarters in Berlin prematurely declared Wednesday morning that the pass had already been taken and that the British rearguard had been "annihilated."

British middle east headquarters acknowledged that B. E. F. troops made a further withdrawal, "inflicting severe losses on the enemy" as they fell back toward Athens.

Earlier dispatches from the Hellenic capital itself declared that grey-green waves of Nazi infantry stormed the pass had been driven off and that the Germans had brought up heavy 6-inch guns to shell the Allied defenders.

Ambulance drivers arriving in Athens from the battlefront said the Germans had suffered terrific losses in attempts to take the pass by infantry assaults. British casualties were described as "extremely light."

In London, no attempt was made to conceal that withdrawal of the British expeditionary force was "in the cards"; but the British radio declared last night that so far "not one British soldier has re-embarked from Greece."

The German high command pictured chaotic destruction among ships waiting in Greek "escape" ports to remove surviving B. E. F. troops. Stuka divebombers were reported to have sent six vessels to the bottom and damaged 14 others in the past 24 hours.

"These were so severely damaged they would hardly be usable for embarkation of the British expeditionary corps," the German communique said.

While conceding another major setback, London officials insisted the climax of the 20-day-old battle of the Balkans was less serious than the episode at Dunkerque, in the Allied escape from the bloody fields of Flanders last spring.

The number of troops and the quantity of materiel endangered by the German drive in France was far greater, the British said.

A Nazi spokesman described Athens as a "ripe apple" awaiting to be plucked by the German conqueror.

Although some Axis claims put the Nazi vanguards only about 35 miles from Athens as early as Wednesday, advices in Berlin today acknowledged that the German army still is an appreciable distance from the city and is approaching it cautiously.

The Germans indicated that the Greek capital, with its relics of

ORDER: High Command Keeps Firm Grip on Greek Capital

(By International News Service)

ATHENS—The Greek high command held a firm grip on the ancient capital of Athens today as British and Hellenic warriors to the north battled to stem the German juggernaut.

In a special proclamation to the people, the high command urged strict maintenance of public order and warned that all internal disturbances would be crushed—by shooting if necessary.

Simultaneously the proclamation requested a "few days of patience" until matters are "arranged" by military authorities.

"A few days of patience and everything will be arranged under the care of the military command," the proclamation said. "Only thus can general and individual interests be served."

(Editor's Note: Whether this passage in the proclamation indicated the high command in Athens is preparing to reach an armistice agreement with the Germans could only be surmised. Nevertheless, the wording of the statement aroused keen speculation.)

"The high command has taken all measures for the maintenance of security and for protection of life, honor and property at any cost.

"Orders have been issued to use guns, if necessary, against any attempt at disorder."

The proclamation also said that "due to transport difficulties" it will not be easy for persons driven from their homes by the war to return to their dwellings and farms.

GRAND SCALE: Expect Hitler To Launch Broad New Attack

(By United Press)

LONDON—Adolf Hitler's plans for grand scale action against the British empire include an attack on the Mediterranean fleet from new Balkan air bases, a drive against Gibraltar, and the dispatch of land forces to French Syria, Tunisia and Algeria, foreign diplomats reported today.

A usually trustworthy diplomatic source asserted that Hitler had finally obtained the consent of the Spanish government for the passage of several German divisions through Spain to Gibraltar and possibly also to Spanish Morocco.

The informant expressed the belief, on the basis of his information, that the German troops would move within the next few weeks at most and possibly within the next few days.

British official quarters were said to have received no information to substantiate this report.

Some military and naval experts here expressed belief that if Hitler marched into Spain he would try to isolate Gibraltar and make the straits untenable rather than attack the "rock" direct.

There seemed a feeling that before any move against Gibraltar there would come a big attack by German planes on the British eastern Mediterranean fleet, and its Alexandria base, from new bases in Greece. Such an attack might be synchronized with new pressure against Egypt from Libya.

From Iran, a report came to a responsible non-British quarter that Hitler intended both to attack the British fleet and to move against French Syria as soon as the Balkan campaign ended.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

"Boy!" beamed Alex Clowson, new manager of the Mansfield Braves, "as he looked over the bunch of 25 huskies trying out for battery positions on this year's Ohio State league ball club.

"Boy! These Cleveland scouts don't send us any runts, do they? Look at that bunch of big fellows warming up over there. Big enough to eat hay? Why, they're big enough to play with the Chicago Bears—but football!

"I ought to be able to find myself some pretty good chuckers in that lot."

Clowson, former captain of the Ohio State University baseball team, and manager last year of Gloversville in the Canadian-American league, was getting his first glimpse of some of the boys he hopes to pilot to an Ohio State league championship this summer.

"I want to see baseball go here this summer," declared Clowson. 'I think these Mansfield men who are trying to put the game over after the way they lost last year are deserving of a lot of credit.

"And they're deserving, too, of the support of Mansfield baseball fans."

The new boss of the Braves was more than a bit right on those last two observations.

Taken into the ball club last year to provide local color for the Toledo management, the Mansfield group discovered they had been "TAKEN IN" for sure, to the tune of their original investment plus a lot of unpaid bills.

When they assumed the club's debts they not only cleared the team's reputation with organized baseball and local merchants, they assured the possibility of organized ball for Mansfield in the years to come. Organized baseball demands that bills be paid.

This is the first year since Mansfield entered the Ohio State league that the team is completely home-owned. And it will be completely home-operated even to the concessions at the ball park.

And that fact, alone, should assure Mansfield fans that they'll get a square deal at the ball yard this summer. The men backing the Braves can not afford to risk their business reputations on any other kind of a deal.

Gosh, how sprightly we started out on this column, and how seriously we wound up. Well, sport can sometimes be serious.

Fans who want to see the Braves in action have plenty of opportunity before the season starts May 14. Right now they're working on a 10 a. m. until 2 p. m. schedule to get the most out of this springtime sun.

There was so much cold wind out there yesterday that strenuous exercise was taboo. "Just loosening up with pepper games and running," explained Clowson, "but we'll soon get down to hard work.

"Then we'll find out what these big fellows can do."

Vet Turns In 4 Victories

Ray Starr Proves Lone Indian Dependable.

(By Associated Press)

Pitcher Ray Starr is out to make quite a prophet of Wade Killefer, Indianapolis manager.

In spring training Killefer expressed the opinion that Starr, a veteran right hander purchased from Dallas of the Texas league last December, would win at least 20 games during the American Association season.

The campaign entered its ninth day today and Starr already owns four victories—or all but one of the Indianapolis total.

His fourth in a row came yesterday as he stopped St. Paul, 5 to 1, on five hits.

Louisville, which celebrates its 65th anniversary of professional baseball today with a doubleheader against Minneapolis, warmed up to the occasion yesterday by blanking the Millers, 9 to 0.

In the only other game, Toledo clubbed out 13 hits for the second straight day and, aided by 10 bases on balls, trounced Kansas City, 11 to 5.

Milwaukee's game at Columbus was called off because of cold weather.

Brown Wants Just 20 Best Ohio State School Players

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — That old, old "squawk" by Ohio's smaller college coaches that Ohio State university takes all the available high school football talent, and then uses only a tenth of it, is about to become a thing of the past.

Paul E. Brown, new mentor of the Buckeyes, who has already streamlined his varsity squad by cutting it to 45 men instead of the usual 80, promised that today.

"We are not interested in a multitude of freshmen players," the new boss of the Bucks declared. "If we can get the 20 boys we really want each year, we'll be more than satisfied. What we are after from the high school ranks is fewer and better boys."

Each year, Brown declared, scores of boys come to Ohio State with the idea of playing football, but most of them are not of Big Ten caliber. Many, when they fail to make the varsity squad, become dissatisfied and quit football.

"We want any boy who feels he is capable of playing Western conference ball to take a crack at it," Brown said, "and any student at Ohio State will get a chance to show all his ability.

"However, each year there are boys unable to make the Western conference teams who would be outstanding players on some of the state's smaller college squads. When a boy fails to make our squad, and drops out of football, he not only loses all chance to play football for himself, but he deprives some smaller school of a good player.

"We feel every boy is entitled to play on the best team he can attain, so naturally we'd like to have the top-notch stars, but the other colleges in the state are entitled to their share of the talent. With that in view, we are going to concentrate on interesting the few boys we want at Ohio State, so that the other Ohio colleges may get the remainder."

For the last several years Ohio State has had an annual freshman squad of between 200 and 300 boys. As sophomores, only 35 or 40 were invited out for the varsity.

As a result, some 200 or more boys each year were lost to football, since those erased from the squad declined, in most cases, to transfer to other schools where they had a chance to play.

"Boys have the right to play football," Brown said, "and it's much better, in later years, to look back at three years of varsity playing at a minor college, than it is to remember a year on the freshman squad, or three years of sitting on the varsity bench, at a larger institution."

* * *

Brown speaks from experience, too. Back in 1926 he enrolled at Ohio State, but found he was too small to make the grade there. He transferred to Miami university, played three years of varsity football—and just look where he is now—coaching the team he couldn't "make" as a player.

Track Stars Run In Drake Relays

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—Crack contingents of track and field stars went after new records in the 32nd annual Drake Relays today, athletes from more than 60 universities and colleges competing in nine championships and as many preliminary events.

Track fans virtually entered two new records in the books before the start of the two-day classic and hope to see new meet marks established in three other events.

With a fast track in prospect, the university sprint medley mark of 3:25.1 held jointly by Rice and Indians, was likely to topple in a race that had Texas, Michigan, Notre Dame, Louisiana State, Ohio State and Nebraska fighting for the front spot.

THIRD DAY WITHOUT CHANGE RECORDED

ST. PAUL—(INS)—The American Bowling Congress headed into its third day today without a change among the 'big five" leaders in all divisions, but a heavy week-end program carried a threat of a sudden end to the high score drought.

Indicative of the slower pace the past two days was the high game of yesterday in the team event, rolled by the Kurl shop five of North Tonawanda, N. Y. The eastern quintet hit 2,859, far under the 3,065 held by the leading Vogel Brothers' team of Forest Park, Ill.

ENGLISH TO RUN FAMOUS DERBY AGAIN

NEWMARKET, Eng.—(INS)—The Jockey club today confirmed reports that Britain's famous derby and the New Oaks stakes would be run here June 18 and 19.

Run at Epsom in normal times, the derby was held at Newmarket last year, and earlier this year it was announced it would be held at Newbury. No reason was given for the new switch.

Presented Title Trophies

BOWLING SCORES

Carl (Gas) Heilman showed the way to B league bowlers last night when he smacked the maples for 228-184-222—634, while C. Altman crashed through with 242-188-180—610, and H. Campbell collected 200-234-171—605.

All States Freight keglers are booked in the state tournament at Dayton tomorrow night at 9:15, and are lined up as follows for doubles: Ed Henrich and Wayne Anthony, Hildreth Johns and Carl Heilman, Eugene Funston and Jennings Heiser.

HOOSIERS FAVORED IN ANNUAL PENN RELAYS

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — A lightning fast track and clear skies greeted 3,000 of the nation's track and field athletes today as they began their bids for Penn relay championships.

Indiana ruled the prime favorite to cop the Carnival championship and was the choice to win two of the three major stakes today, the distance and sprint medleys.

Ohio Fighter Hits Top Rank

Lenny Mancini Does It The Hard Way.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Two years ago Lenny Mancini pulled on his old overalls and a torn sweater and left Youngstown to seek boxing glory in New York City—the world's fight center.

His muscles hardened by life in a CCC camp but his stomach empty, Mancini was introduced to a fight manager and subsequently booked for a preliminary. He was then 19.

* * *

The Ohio youth fought Charles Varre in that first bout and Varre broke Lenny's jaw with a stinging right-handed punch.

"I'll be back," Lenny said as he went home.

Today the rugged Ohioan ranks among the leading lightweights of the world and is just one bout away from a match with the champion.

He tackles Billy Marquart of Chicago here Tuesday night and if he wins decisively, Matchmaker Ray Foutts plans to pit him against Sammy Angott of Louisville, Ky., the National Boxing Association titlist.

Maxie Berger of Montreal, who claims the world's junior welterweight championship, battles Pete De Ruzza of Mamaroneck, N. Y., in another 10-rounder. They previously fought to a draw in New York.

Rams Edge Blue Jays In Preview of 1941 Gridiron Season

Fumble Leads to Lone Touchdown of Practice Game Under Lights

By BOB HUFFMAN

In a pre-view of the 1941 grid season last night at Madison township high school, the Rams edged Bellville 7-0 in a hard-fought contest that brought promise of a successful fall season to both schools. A crowd of about 1,000 fans saw the tilt.

Madison scored the only touchdown late in the first quarter following a Bellville fumble deep in Madison territory. Bell and Anthony of Madison took the ball for two successive first downs into scoring position and Anthony swept over the goal on a reverse. Hammer plunged for the extra point.

The first half settled into a duel of sterling line play punctuated by good runs on the part of Anthony and Bell of Madison. Madison chalked up five first downs in the first half while Bellville was bottled up without a first down.

In the second half, with both coaches on the field correcting errors, the teams see-sawed back and forth.

Kiser of Bellville made one sparkling 40 yard gallop around Madison's end but Bellville was unable to continue the drive and lost the ball on downs. Bellville made four first downs in the second half to two for Madison.

Kiser and Dill sparked the visitors' backfield while Anthony and Hammer did the heavy work for Madison.

* * *

Both teams confined themselves to ground attack until late in the second half, when a few aerials were thrown, but not completed.

Hedges Hoop Team Honored

Tourney and City Loop Trophies Presented.

One hundred and 63 parents, teachers, children and guests gathered at Hedges school gymnasium last night for a covered dish dinner honoring the school's undefeated basketball team of the past winter.

During the clean sweep of the cage campaign Hedges youngsters chalked up 17 victories in grade league competition, and added four more to take the city tournament crown.

Trophies for both championships were presented last night by Harry Mehock, director of physical education in Mansfield schools.

Coach Lois Baughman, one of the very few woman mentors of boys' athletic teams, awarded school monograms with the word "Champs" on the cross-bar, to the following players: Captain Robert Bishop, Oliver Cline, Russell Bishop, Frank Boubary, Otis Bennett, Leroy Metcalf, Charles Sisco, Donald Woerth, Eugene Robbins, James Hoffman, Tom McCullough, Arthur Smith, Tom Campbell, Donald Clark, Eddie Reeder and Richard Pore.

About half of this group will be back next year to defend the unbeaten record.

The boys really broke training last night. If they had eaten during the season as they did at the championship dinner, they'd have rolled ,not romped, across the new Hedges gym.

Indians Have Bad Habit

Practice of Dropping Opener Continues.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians have lost four games this season and every defeat has been in the opener of a series. Chicago kept the jinx going yesterday by beating Al Smith, 2 to 1.

With the psychological handicap gone the Redskins nominated Jim Bagby to face the White Sox today in the finale of an abbreviated series. Bagby was defeated by Detroit in his first start this year, 4 to 2. The pale hose picked veteran Ted Lyons for mound chores.

Smith allowed Chicago only three hits, but lost the ball game when he pitched a triple to Dario Lodigiani in the seventh inning with two men on base. Luke Appling started the rally with a single and was forced by Joe Kuhel, but the Tribal southpaw walked Moose Solters to set up the winning runs.

The Indians picked up their only run in the eighth on Pitch-hitter Murray Howell's single, an infield out and a one-base blow by Lou Boudreau.

Ray Mack singled in the ninth, but Thornton Lee forced Russ Peters to ground out and end game. The Indians collected six hits off Lee, but the Chicago portsider tightened in the pinches.

Clint Brown hurled the final inning for Cleveland and gave up two hits, but stopped Chicago from scoring.

Mack made two of Cleveland hits, with Howell, Boudreau, Roy Weatherly and Al Trosky getting the others.

The Indians return home tomorrow to open a three-game series against Detroit, with Mel Harder or Al Milnar due to face the Bengals in the opener.

Softspoken Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Indians, echoed Bob Feller's warning against stealing his pitches.

"Go ahead, you fellows who think you can call Feller's pitches, but it will be just too bad for you if someone gets hurt."

900 Schoolboys Enter O. W. U. Relays

DELAWARE—More than sixty high schools scattered over the state are sending approximately 75 teams, including 900 boys, here to compete in the tenth annual Ohio Wesleyan High School Relays, Saturday, April 26, it was announced today by George E. Gauthier, Battling Bishop director of the athletics and manager of the relays. Both Class A and Class B schools are entered. Last year's winners were Columbus North (Class A) and O. S. & S. O. Home of Xenia (Class B).

Jim the Ripper Helps Boss Who Brought Him Back

By SID FEDER
(AP Sports Writer)

Frankie Frisch's insurance policy returned a nice fat dividend check to the Pittsburgh Pirates today, and no one was happier than the "policy," himself.

For, this policy, better known to the trade as Jim the Ripper Collins, not only paid off when it counted most—in the clutch—but he did it against the Chicago Cubs, the club that let the policy "lapse" by sending him to the minors a couple of years ago.

It must have warmed the hearts of both Frankie and Rip, that pinch-single Collins delivered in the 11th inning yesterday which gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 decision over the Cubs. Rip thus got at least a small piece of his revenge.

The win didn't effect the standings in the league, for the Pirates are well down in the lists and the New York Giants, setting the pace, were rained out at Boston.

Over in the American league, however, the top spots were reshuffled and dealt over again and there were your old pounding pals, the Yankees, right on top of the heap. A combination of Marius Russo's seven-hit southpawing and two three-run innings. One of them produced by Charley Keller's homer, gave the Yanks a 6-3 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

This setback dropped the Sox from the No. 1 slot right down to a tie for third place with the Cleveland Indians, who were nosed out 2-1 by the Chicago White Sox. Lefty Thornton Lee bested just-as-Lefty Al Smith in this one and the win boosted Jimmy Dykes' wonder-men into second place.

"Hot Potato" Luke Hamlin turned in his second straight hurling "nifty" to give the revamped Brooklyn Dodgers 6-1 win over the futile Phillies. On top of his five-hitter of last Saturday, the "Hot Potato" tossed a four-hitter this time.

Lonnie Frey's ninth inning double set the winning run home to enable the Cincinnati Reds to down the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

Tommy Bridges' steady elbowing and a two-run triple by Frankie Croucher, in celebration of his graduation from the bench, gave the Detroit Tigers a 4-2 edge over the St Louis Browns. Washington and the Philadelphia Athletics were sidelined by cold weather.

Two Coon Chase Programs Booked

SHELBY—Two coon chase programs have been set up for this spring by Shelby Conservation Association, C. Fred Rollins, association president, announced today.

The chases will be held Sundays. May 4 and June 8, at the Bert Holtz farm, northeast of Shelby. Prizes totaling $100 will be given away. Both events get underway at 10 a. m. Lunch will be served on the grounds, Rollins said.

Sponsored by the association, the coon chases are in general charge of John Cox, head of the coon division.

Aged Schooner Takes on Sail After 22 Years

CAMDEN, Me.—(U.P.)—Wars have twice given a new lease on life to the three-masted schooner George E. Klinck.

* * *

Built in 1904 at Mystic, Conn., the windjammer plied out of New York in the granite trade for years. She was ready for the boneyard when World war created a shortage of ships and kept her in service. She retired to a Camden wharf when the Armistice was signed.

The European war now has created a new demand for bottoms, and a Portland lumber dealer ordered the Klinck reconditioned for coastal service between Portland and Jacksonville, Fla.

Capt. Lewis MacFarland, who supervised installation of auxiliary gasoline engines, found trouble in shipping a crew of "old salts." Most of the experienced windjammers, he discovered, were too old for service on slippery decks or aloft in a blow.

Jail Shelters British Tommy Of World War

MIAMI—(U.P.)—Edward A. Hill, a British World war veteran mental case, temporarily solved a six-month-old problem for authorities recently, but once again they are confronted with the same puzzle.

Hill solved the problem for one day by walking out of city jail where he has been held since July 27 because he could not obtain admittance to an institution with proper facilities to care for him.

He was found after one day of liberty and returned to city jail. The state hospital for the insane at Chattahoochee would not accept him because he had resided in Florida less than one year. Hospitalization as a veteran has been denied him because he is a British subject.

L. A. Oates, British vice consul here, has evinced an interest in Hill's case, but has not provided a solution for it.

Champ Redlegs Look It

Show Evidence They Are Baseball World Kings.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—It may be said with some slight assurance that the Cincinnati Reds are beginning to look like the world champion Cincinnati Reds again.

Evidence:

Item: Fireman Joe Beggs has started saving games again and gets the credit for yesterday's 3-2 job over the St. Louis Cardinals just for pitching a couple of innings.

Item: It was another one-run victory, much akin to the 41 the Reds had last year, and their second of 1941.

Item: The winning run came in the ninth inning, a time the Reds must be watched.

Item: Not a Red is among the five leading hitters of the National league, but the team has won five straight games.

Item: It was another errorless ball game.

Of course, at this early date the evidence does not point conclusively to a third straight pennant, but the pattern could be established.

For six innings yesterday, Fiddler Bill McGee seemed to have the eye on the Reds. He gave them no hits for five and the two-run lead piled up off Paul Derringer in the first and third innings began to look as big as a barn. Paul himself went out in the fifth with a pulled muscle.

Then Ernie Lombardi singled with one away in the seventh, moved along on Harry Craft's walk, and let Johnny Vander Meer run for him. Both runners advanced on a passed ball and Vandy scored on Eddie Joost's single. Craft followed him in with the tying run on an infield out.

The ninth opened with Craft working McGee for another walk. Joost got an infield single. The rally seemed dying when Beggs' attempted sacrifice failed and Bill Werber flied out, but Lonnie Frey lined a double to the scoreboard for the ball game.

THEATERS

Border Bandit.

Wallace Beery as Pancho Lopez opens at the Madison, Saturday, in his most picturesque characterization since "Viva Villa." Playing the title role in "The Bad Man," Beery presents a veritable Robin Hood of the range, menacing yet kindly. The story deals with a group of tenderfeet and their adventures south of the border. Lionel Barrymore, Nydia Westman, Laraine Day and Ronald Reagan appear in the cast. "Here Comes Happiness," the co-attraction is a hilarious story of money and matrimony with Richard Ainley and Jessica Vance.

Western Thriller.

In an action-packed drama of the frontier, Johnny Mack Brown plays a U. S. marshal in "Law and Order," now showing at the Ritz. Texas-born Nell O'Day displays riding talent of the first order as the heroine and Fuzzy Knight grabs off comedy honors in this tale dealing with renegades and justice-seeking ranchers. "Captain Caution," is the second attraction.

Air Drama.

Howard Hughes famous $400,000 record-breaking racing plane was used in "Men Against the Sky," thrill-packed drama of modern aircraft practice, playing at the Park. Unlike most aviation films dealing with war-time activities this picture depicts the efforts of three men and a girl to build the world's fastest pursuit ship. Richard Dix, Wendy Barrie, Kent Taylor and Edmund Lowe are cast. Tim Holt in the second film, "The Fargo Kid," appears as a cowboy mistaken as a killer by a pair of villains.

Fancy Sleuthing.

A fortune in gems is the prize as the Lone Wolf solves a double murder, upsets the plans of rival jewel thieves and rescues a kidnaped lady in distress in "The Lone Wolf Strikes," showing at the Majestic. Warren Williams as the "Wolf" is supported by Joan Perry, Eric Blore, Alan Baxter and Astrid Allwyn. Law enforcement on the frontier motivates "Border Vigilantes," William Boyd's picture showing as the second film.

Clever Comedy.

Brian Aherne does double-duty as a co-star with Kay Francis in "The Man Who Lost Himself," showing today at the Ohio. One of the cleverest comedies of the season results as he plays two men, each continuously mistaken for the other. Kay Francis, as lavishly dressed as usual, appears as the wife of one, a respectable business man. Her adventure with the other, a worthless eccentric, whom she also believes to be her husband provide farce on the first order. Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney open Saturday in "Men of Boys Town."

Gene Thompson is Manager Bill McKechnie's choice to continue the good work today, with Lon Warneke, who took down the Reds so handily opening day, doing the pitching for the Cards. Gene didn't last in his first start against St. Louis.

Only Mild Inflation Hits France In Defeat

Price Control, Fear of Worthlessness of Franc In Future Prevents Skyrocketing, Hoarding

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Inflation in France is discussed in the following article, last in a series by Kenneth Downs, ace foreign correspondent of International News Service.)

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LISBON—(INS)—Inflation has come to France in a mild way, but certainly not in the manner one might expect in view of the 400,000,000 francs a day run off the printing presses for the account of the German army of occupation.

Note circulation in France was said to be around 200,000,000,000 francs in February as compared to 135,000,000,000 when the armistice was signed and 119,000,000,000 at the time of Munich.

Yet, on the black bourse, the dollar has never commanded more than 200 francs at the highest. Usually, black bourse rates run from 100 to 150. The official rate is 43.50 to the dollar

Similarly, goods sold on the black bourse run two, three and four times the official price. It is rare for an article to bring more than five times its normal price on the black bourse.

Serious inflation is being prevented by rather stringent price control. This is possible now because French economy at this time is entirely an interior economy.

Bank deposits are way up because of free-handed German spending and because hoarders, fearful their money will dwindle away to worthlessness, have brought their holdings out of hiding.

Because there are few goods left to buy and securities are scarce, there has been a sharp rise on the stock market, the general average of securities going up 20 per cent from the first of the year to March 1. Land prices have jumped. No one wants to hold his francs, but finding places to invest them is difficult.

Here are comparative prices of some leading French and International shares quoted on the bourse at Lyons, the first figure being the price of the stock April 1940, the last figure being the price quoted for the same stock Feb. 19:

Bank of Paris, 1,063 against 1,490; credit Lyonnais 1,710 against 2,740; Suez, 16,160 against 19,500; Eaux Lyonnaises, 1,292 against 3,290; Canadian Pacific, 320 against 530; Rio Tinto, 2,920 against 3,850; Royal Dutch, 5,700 against 8,250.

The prices quoted for French shares do not appear to reflect the fear of a German victory, or at least the consequences of a German victory. These consequences, according to opinions expressed privately in French financial circles, would be the extinction of French industry and finance.

"If Germany wins, French industry will become a thing of the past," one economic expert with wide banking connections told me at Vichy. "And the French financier will be as extinct as the Dodo bird.

"We will become an agricultural nation, supplementing agriculture with small crafts such as manufacture of wigs, perfumes, bags, fashions, and so forth. Under these conditions we would, of course, be a second-rate power. No strictly agricultural nation can be a first-class power today.

"If Germany wins, our money, like that of all the other countries of Europe, will be based on the mark and cleared in Berlin. If Germany loses, I feel international currency will be based on the dollar."

What would the effect of a German victory be on the French standard of living, in his opinion?

"There would be a general leveling down. The wealthy would disappear. The peasant's position would not be changed much, nor would the position of the small shopkeeper, except that he would be handling German goods, under German regulations. The lot of labor would undoubtedly be very hard, however, with strict regimentation, tens of thousands of them being sent to the fields and probably many other tens of thousands to Africa."

The French national debt today is placed somewhere between 900 and 1,000 billion francs.

DO NOT AGREE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(U.P.)—Sons of farmers and miners attending Pennsylvania State College do not agree in following their fathers' footsteps, a report by Registrar William S. Hoffman indicates.

Of 332 sons of farmers attending Penn State, 226 are enrolled in the School of Agriculture, the report revealed. Only 14 of the 162 miners' sons enrolled chose the mining engineering curriculum.

100 YEARS OLD

ALBANY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Congregation Beth El Jacob, considered the oldest orthodox synagogue in America, has celebrated its 100th anniversary. Several patriarchs who have been connected with the temple more than 50 years attended a recent anniversary observance.

National Parks Get Autogiros To Stop Fires

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The National Park Service has acquired two autogiros from the army to aid in fighting the fires and insect scourges that annually hit the nation's forests.

The 225-horsepower autogiros will be used primarily to spot forest fires in "blind spots" behind ridges where tower lookouts cannot see, and to search for "sleeper fires" that smoulder for several days before bursting into flame.

Standard planes have been used by the service for several years in fighting fires, finding lost persons, and carrying supplies to isolated stations. The autogiro will be used in addition for forest spraying, scouting tree diseases, insect infestations, and taking censuses of wild life.

The slow low-flying planes are adapted especially to aerial photography and will be used widely by landscape architects and park planners.

TOOTING ENDS

FOSTORIA, O.—(U.P.)—Residents of this area soon will have to find a new means for learning the time and getting the weather reports. The old Harter mill whistle is to be silenced.

The whistle has been used for nearly 50 years to signal time and weather conditions to the countryside through a code system of shrill blasts, but steam boilers at the mill are to be replaced by electrical equipment, making it impossible to operate the whistle.

BUYING SHOWS SLACKENING ON MARKET TODAY

Trends Turn Indefinite After Steady Opening; Commodities Remain Mixed.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Buying slackened in today's stock market and trends turned somewhat indefinite after a fairly steady opening.

Mild resistance was shown by U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Pennsylvania, Phelps Dodge, Goodyear and Montgomery Ward.

Inclined to lag were American Telephone, General Motors, Anaconda, Woolworth and N. Y. Central.

Commodities were a trifle mixed.

Boardrooms found some cheer in the Dun & Bradstreet survey which disclosed retail spending throughout the country this week registered a "near-record volume."

Confirmation of the speed-up in merchandising was given by the federal reserve board compilation which placed department store sales for the week ended April 19 at 18 per cent over the like 1910 period.

Reports Prowlers—Mrs. D. C. Guthrie, 610 West Fourth street, reported last night that two boys, one colored, attempted to gain entrance to her home earlier in the evening but that they had disappeared when she called to them. RECIPES FOR COOKING SCHOOL SESSION LISTED

These Foods Demonstrated at Final Session of Four-Day Series.

Recipes demonstrated today at the final session of The News-Journal all-electric cooking school include:

POTATO PANCAKES

A Spry Kitchen Recipe

Peel raw white potatoes, soak in cold water a short while and then grate. For every cup of grated raw potato, allow one beaten egg, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and 1 tablespoon flour. Drop spoonful of the mixture in frying pan containing two tablespoons melted shortening. Fry slowly until crisp and golden brown. Serve with apple sauce or cinnamon apples.

HONEY-PEANUT COOKIES

1 cup shortening
½ cup honey
½ cup brown sugar.
⅓ cup milk
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
2 cups quick cooking oats
1 cup chopped raisins
1 cup chopped peanuts (salted)

Cream the shortening, add honey and brown sugar, then add remainder of ingredients in order given. Roll a teaspoon of the dough in the hands place on an ungreased cookie sheet, flattening a little. Bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees, for 15 to 20 minutes. This recipe makes from 50 to 60 cookies of delicious flavor. If plain peanuts are used, then add ½ teaspoon salt to shortening..

CRANBERRY CASHEW SALAD

Cook 2 cups cranberries with 1 cup sugar and 1 cup water. When they "pop," add 1½ tablespoons gelatine (unflavored) which has been soaked in ¼ cup cold water. Cool and add ¼ cup chopped salted cashew nuts, ½ cup chopped apples and ½ cup chopped celery. Turn into either large or individual molds and chill

BOSTON ORANGE PIE

6 tablespoons shortening
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon orange flavoring
1 cup granulated sugar
1¾ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
½ cup milk

Add salt and flavoring to shortening, then cream sugar and shortening. Add eggs one at a time and beat well after each. Add flour (which has been sifted with baking powder) alternately with milk. Bake in large round pan (9 or 10 inch pan) at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. When cool, split and put filling between halves. Sprinkle top with powdered sugar or top with whipped cream.

Filling.

3 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup orange juice
¾ cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine above ingredients and place over low heat, stirring constantly and cooking five minutes after mixture thickens. Then add 1 teaspoon grated orange rind and sections from 3 oranges well drained. If these sections are prepared first the juice drained from them may be used for part of the juice needed.

PARTY RAREBIT

2 eggs
1 lb. sharp cheese sliced thin
1 can tomato soup
½ can water
2 onions
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon table sauce
½ teaspoon dry mustard
salt
pepper

Tomato soup and water is placed in top of a double boiler but place over direct heat. Add finely sliced onions and cook until onions are tender, having low heat and cover on pan. Add thinly sliced cheese (can be put through food chopper) and blend well. Now add beaten yolks of eggs to which has been added seasonings stirring briskly. Then remove from heat, fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs and place over hot part of double boiler to [illegible] for 2 or 3 hours. Serve over toast.

CINNAMON APPLES

3 or 4 apples suitable for baking
2 tablespoons red cinnamon candies
1 cup granulated sugar

1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice
½ cup water
2 tablespoons minute tapioca
2 whole cloves

Pare and quarter apples. Dissolve candies and sugar in water, adding tapioca at the same time. Pour mixture over apples that have been placed in a casserole or pan that has a cover. These may be placed in oven and cooked with almost any oven dish as definite temperature need not be used.

SURPRISE SOUR CREAM PUDDING

3 tablespoons shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup All-Bran
1 cup milk
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups light brown sugar
2 cups thick sour cream

Blend shortening and sugar, add egg and beat well. Soak All-Bran in milk. Sift flour with baking powder and salt and add to creamed mixture alternately with All-Bran and milk; add flavoring. Pour into deep baking pan and spread evenly. Sprinkle brown sugar over top and pour on cream. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 45 minutes. Serve hot in up-side-down squares

Yield. 9 3-inch squares (10x10-inch pan)

Note: Dough rises to top and cream and brown sugar form a carmel sauce. Cream may be soured by adding two tablespoons of lemon juice and placing in warm place for an hour or two.

YOUTH PROBLEM PART OF JOB OF FUND AGENCY

Juvenile Detention Home's Important Function of Salvation Army.

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on Mansfield Community Fund agencies. They are being published in connection with the annual Fund campaign which opens next Monday.)

The fact that the Salvation Army plays an increasingly important part in the life of the juvenile offender through its detention home is sometimes obscured by the better known activities of this religious and welfare organization.

Working in conjunction with the Richland county Probate court the Salvation Army juvenile detention home last year housed 119 boys and girls up to 18 years of age during the time they were awaiting trial, parole, or commitment to Industrial schools.

In cases where the offender refuses to discuss his or her act with the court, an effort is made by the Salvation Army, Adjt. Paul Hoffman explained, to draw out the youth and reach the source of the trouble. Many of the cases originate from broken homes, the adjutant said.

The number of repeaters in ths detention home is small, Army records show. An exception however is the boy confined for the third time this year while awaiting return to Lancaster for parole violation.

Last year the Army furnished 451 days housing, 1,035 meals and also laundry to detention home "wards."

Another service that dove-tails with the detention home is the nursery where children under eight are cared for until adjustments are made in their own homes. Eight children from three families have been cared for so far this year.

Through a program set up by the Salvation Army the blind of Richland county are entertained at the citadel one day a week.

Blind persons are much more active than most people think, Adjt. Hoffman said. They engage in every kind of recreation to which no physical danger is attached and they particularly like to dance.

Their weekly program at the Army includes the teaching of Braille, letter-writing, handicraft and games of various kinds. Lunch is served at noon and free transportation is furnished by various individuals.

Emergency relief, welfare work of all kinds, religious services and a year-around arts and crafts program that includes gym and a summer camp are Salvation Army activities with which the public is familiar.

The gym is in demand by outside teams and it is estimated that 1,000 people use the floor each month. Thirty-five basketball teams had access to the floor during the season and was used by 4,463 boys.

The Family Welfare department makes it possible for underprivileged families to equip themselves with clothing, bedding and furniture. Last year 1,920 garments were distributed and a large assortment of furniture, all donated by Mansfield families.

Transient relief was extended to 1,534 individuals. Meals were served to 1,422 and 272 garments and 39 pairs of shoes were distributed.

Agency of the Community Fund, the Salvation Army will receive $6,150 under the 1941-42 budget if the goal of $64,375 is [illegible] ast year operations cost $8,503.89.

Salvation Army Helps Blind

Once a week the blind of Richland county are entertained all day at the Salvation Army. The trio shown here is receiving instructions in Braille. Handicraft and letter-writing are also taught.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1941.

Belief is quite general that new taxing laws will be far-reaching as well as deep-reaching.

The Christian Science Monitor has an idea that opportunities are frequently unrecognized because they are clad in overalls and look like hard work.

According to a biologist, "Unusual brightness may cause the child to fail in school"—so that's the explanation you can give the children when they run across your old grade card.

Heroic But Futile Resistance

NAZI occupation of Greece, while it appears as calamitous to the heroic defenders of that small nation, is probably rightly regarded by military experts as no more than an incident in the European war picture.

Even such well-intentioned but ineffective help as Great Britain could give, under the circumstances, was little more than a gesture of friendly interest, for it was the tremendous force of the Nazi war machine, with unlimited manpower and mechanized units that was concentrated on what was a relatively small task.

In well informed military circles it was not doubted from the start that Germany would rather quickly accomplish the subjugation of Greece, after Italy had been given a chance and had met miserable failure.

Guesswork now turns to considering Hitler's most likely next move and the parts that Turkey and Spain will be called upon to play in coming days and weeks. Whether the next turn will be toward Suez or in the direction of Gibraltar is problematical, with the attitude of Stalin and Franco still undetermined.

Meanwhile the situation of Great Britain, as the sole effective fighting force against the Axis powers, is steadily becoming more acute, with growing need for more effective aid from the United States if the war is to be kept from dragging out for several years—possibly a decade or more.

The continued confidence of President Roosevelt that Great Britain will be the final victor, is gratifying—if not entirely convincing. That outcome will be more dependent on what the United States is willing and able to do in contributing to defeat of the Axis powers than on what ANYONE now THINKS.

President Roosevelt was wise in his warning against attaining "a pinnacle of hope" one day because of a sea victory by Britain and reaching the depths of despair the next day upon learning of an Axis advance in Greece.

It is determination to develop superior strength in mechanized warfare, and a sufficient manpower to keep this in operation, that will decide the final outcome.

And it has been accepted as a task of the United States to act as the "arsenal and granary of democracy" in this battle for the preservation of human freedom in lands where it still exists, and restore it to peoples from whom it has been taken.

IT CAN BE DONE—but it will require a greater unity of purpose than has yet been evidenced in this country.

Knudsen's Optimistic Forecast

A REASSURING statement by William S. Knudsen, chief of American defense production, is that our industries will soon be making war equipment twice as fast as "any two countries in Europe you could mention." That is to say, twice as fast as Germany and Britain together. Such production levels are generally expected early next year. Output will be steadily rising from now on.

Industry alone will not win the war, but it is the chief factor. Recent fighting has shown, more convincingly than ever, the need of military mechanization. It is likely to be the guns, shells, bombs and fighting planes that determine the outcome. They greatly reinforce the troops, and to a large extent replace them.

A big army is being trained but there is hope that it will not be needed. The faster war supplies are rushed across the sea, by all means available, the less likelihood of having to send men.

Reduction Without Hardship

LIMITS on automobile production, for the benefit of military production, were expected. The present cut of one-fifth, ordered by William Knudsen, director of production management, seems moderate in view of the general situation. It will still allow new production of more than 4,000,000 cars and trucks a year, probably more than the total number of motor vehicles in all Europe.

Americans, with immense volume of transportation, good roads and an inborn need of getting around, naturally require a vast amount of transportation. But with about 30,000,000 motor cars and trucks already available, the four million a year should suffice for the immediate future, at least.

Fortunately the canny American public, expecting a crackdown on private cars, and having the funds to pay at least the first installment, has already loaded up pretty well with new models. And the market is flooded with good used cars, so there need be little privation in this field.

More Hunting With Cameras

AMERICANS always have been great hunters, but as the years pass they do it less with guns and more with cameras. Canada, too, is tending that way, although it has more game left than we have.

Ivan Dmitri, a leading American photographer, has been fascinated by the game he found to shoot with his lens in the Canadian Rockies. He reports that the game itself is increasing with the increase of camera hunters. Both parties to that sport are benefited, he says, because "wild game photography has not the finality of big-game shooting." A high-powered shot will end the career of a moose, but the animal may be "shot" with a camera hundreds of times.

There's growing need for a 2½-cent coin, as in the case of the Knoxville WPA worker who owed a half-cent income tax and was required to pay a full cent—whereas, with a 2½-cent coin the exact change could have been given.

The old baseball morale of Joe Cobb is being recalled in association with current war news. "Unless I am mistaken—and I probably am mistaken—"

In motorizing transportation it would have been better if the horse sense could have been retained.

A more recent definition of a blotter is: "What you hunt for while the ink dries."

Put Yourself Across

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DOES the world pass you by? Do your friends overlook you? Is your family indifferent to your opinions even after years of loyal service? And are you plenty sorry for yourself? Then take a tip from this column.

Thousands of people write to this column weekly. These people are all strangers to me and to each other. But they have one thing in common—they all have something to say, something they wish to put on record. And, so far as I'm concerned, I'm equally friendly to them all and willing to give them an even break.

BUT—here's the catch in it—

These unknown friends and fans do not give themselves an even break. Though they have an equal chance, they refuse to use that chance equally. These writers all have something to tell the world — and most of these things are well worth hearing. Yet they are never heard. Why?

BECAUSE THE WRITERS THEMSELVES WILL NOT PRESENT THEIR OWN CASES SO THE WORLD WILL LISTEN.

Instead of deciding what they want to say, then saying it in a simple, direct, forceful manner and writing it so clearly that it may be easily, quickly read, they ramble . . . mumble . . . drift off on detours . . . tell me about their husband's sciatica or their wife's nervous breakdown . . . then take a whack at politics . . . quote a little religion . . . ask me am I really a woman or just a couple of tough talking men . . . and then wind up, somewhere miles off the highway with what they actually started to write.

Or maybe, instead of being Waverers, they're Rioters and proceed to scream, yell, rant, hoot and bellow at everything in general for a dozen or so single-spaced pages. Such a comfort to read when the boss has got to have your copy in exactly 13 minutes—or you stop eating!

Nor is this all. Though they fondly believe that they've the greatest Hunch in Human History and are yearning madly for an appreciative audience (which I'd gladly supply) they can't be bothered to look up decent writing materials and put their hunch down in legible script so that I can have a Chinaman's chance of reading it. Instead, they present a pale, watery blur that may be either a recipe for casseroled crab or an ode to the evening star—but darned if I know which.

So what?

So ye heckled columnist, who only has several hundred letters to wade through daily, besides doing her regular job, gives up and takese the count half way down the first page. And the Great Message remains forever unread.

All of which has a direct application to YOU, though you may not have guessed it. For YOU, too, have something you want to put across—and you're not getting it over; yes? You too want to speak, but the world won't listen. Nobody—you cry—takes you seriously. Even your own children, husband or wife. Or maybe it's the boss who passes you up. And you don't know why. But if you have the courage to apply this article to YOURSELF—it's a 10 to 1 shot you'll find the answer.

Do YOU know what you want to say really? And do YOU say it simply, directly, forcefully in such a way that the Other Fellow—busy and absorbed in his own duties—will and can listen?

Or do you mumble and mutter . . . fumble and fret . . . whine and nag? Talk in circles, wasting your own and the Other Fellow's time . . . or maybe rant so shrilly that you're a public nuisance?

Think it over. You want to put yourself across but—what's your technique? It's the technique that counts. If you don't respect your own message enough to give it a snappy sales talk, it's a cinch nobody else ever will.

Timely Editorial

Bullfighting Must Go On.

War has its absurdities, but none more outlandish than the emergency that has developed in Spain, home of bullfighting. For years the regulations governing the weight, strength and ferocity of fighting bulls have been strict; through all of Spain's vicissitudes the bull and the bullfighter both have been kept up to the standard of vigor and stamina demanded by the public.

But now the regulations have had to be relaxed. Fodder is scarce, the bulls have only grass to eat, and they haven't much pep. Luckily for the bulls, there are fewer horses available for bullfights, and the matadors aren't eating as well as they used to, either.

It's an ironical footnote to the tragic chronicle of a country beset by Axis machinations, poverty and near-starvation. Spanish authorities considered the abandonment of bullfighting altogether, but finally decided against it. If you can't give your people bread, you must let them have their circuses, or an imitation thereof. Take away a man's supper and he will grumble; deprive him of the amusement that makes him forget his hunger and he may fight.—Minneapolis Star-Journal.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"So Little Done, So Much to Do."

They were the befitting last words of one of the greatest modern builders of empire, Cecil John Rhodes.

While still in his teens, Rhodes was given only half a year to live; but, as in so many other instances, he long survived his judges.

Establishing himself in the Natal, South Africa, he recovered his health, in time controlled the Kimberley mines, accumulated one of the greatest fortunes in the world, and, driven by his passionate belief that "the unity of the British Empire is among the greatest organized forces for universal good," brought under the domain of the Union Jack more territory than is embraced by Germany, France, Holland and Belgium combined.

His will provided an equally lasting memorial to his vision.—the Rhodes scholarships at Oxford university.

This Is Ohio

THE WORK of the enterprising farmers who promoted the first Ohio state fair is little known. One of those men was J. G. Gest of Greene county.

First step toward a fair was taken by Gest in calling a meeting at Cincinnati, March 1-2, 1849, of committees from the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, the Cincinnati Horticultural society, the Ohio Mechanics institute, the Hamilton County Agriculture society and the Ohio State Fruit convention.

They decided to hold a state fair in September 1849. An epidemic of cholera prevented the holding of the fair that year but the public had been aroused and the first state fair was held at Camp Washington Oct. 2-4, 1850.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. In Same Plight as Britain As Result of Far-Flung Pledges

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's Note—This is the second of two articles on the military situation of the United States as affected by events in Europe.)

WASHINGTON—It is no exaggeration to say that behind the scenes in the cabinet, also inside the National Defense Commission and among the big industrialists now advising the government, the war picture appears gloomier than ever. This gloom not only clings to the British situation, but also to the American.

Ever since the fall of Salonika, it has sunk home that British and American defenses have an amazing similarity. This may not be apparent on the surface, but here is how it looks to military experts now examining every detail of British moves and reverses.

In the first place, Great Britain, a peaceful nation, started very late to bolster her national defense. The United States started even later. For years Britain sincerely supported the efforts of Stimson, Hughes and Coolidge to limit both armies and navies.

Second, when the British arms program did get started, it tried to keep within the limits of the existing system—fair wages for labor, fair dividends for capital, even the usual commissions for middlemen (as the United States is trying to do today). But Britain found itself pitted against a nation which had scrapped profits, property, hours, and real wages.

British Pledges.

THIRD—and this is the real crux of the situation—the British found themselves with important international commitments but no weapons to carry them out.

In the Balkan crisis they pledged themselves to aid Yugoslavia if attacked: also Turkey; also Greece. Simultaneously they had two fronts in Africa to defend—the Libyan front in North Africa and the Ethiopian front in East Africa.

In addition they had to defend the coasts of the British Isles, were under obligation to distant Australia and Singapore.

Then on the high seas they had to keep part of the fleet in the eastern Mediterranean to support the Greeks, thereby diverting so many ships from the rest of the Mediterranean that the Germans and Italians slipped across with panzer divisions to Libya.

Result of these far-flung commitments is now history. The British could not fulfill their munitions promises to Yugoslavia and the Yugoslavs were defeated. They could not fulfill similar promises to Turkey, and the Turks are now tying up with Hitler. They did fulfill their pledge to Greece, but withdrew so many troops from Libya, that they lost all their gains in North Africa.

Yet when military experts look back on British strategy, it is clear that there was nothing else they could do. They had to try to fulfill their pledges, yet their lack of men and material made fulfilment impossible.

U. S. Far-Flung Pledges.

AND what depresses U. S. defense experts at this very moment is realization that when it comes to a multitude of commitments and a minimum of material, the United States is in exactly the same boat.

Our commitments begin with the Philippines, which we are pledged by act of congress to protect until 1946. Obviously fulfillment of this pledge is impossible. Our next commitment is Hawaii, which we can defend but which will require an important fleet concentration.

Next commitment is Alaska, economically unimportant but strategically most important as a potential enemy air base. Russian or Japanese planes based in Alaska would be within a few hours striking distance of Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. So Alaska, only a stone's throw from Asia, will be extremely difficult to defend.

Next and newest commitment is on the Atlantic side—Greenland. Greenland is essential to defend because it is an ideal base for bombing operations against Boston, New York and the industrial region of New England. But Greenland's defense will require further dispersion of the already far-flung U. S. fleet and inadequately equipped Air Corps.

Oldest and most difficult commitment goes back to 1823 when President Monroe pledged the United States to keep Europe out of South and Central America. Like the British pledge to Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece, this is going to be the most difficult commitment for the United States to fulfill. Yet the Monroe Doctrine probably has deeper roots with the American people and is more relied upon by the Latin Americans.

To fulfill that pledge, the U. S. army has brought Latin American chiefs of staff to visit the military camps and arsenals of the United States, and has let them pick what weapons they need. But picking the weapons and delivering them later are two different things.

U. S. defense chiefs have to parcel out the very limited production of American arms factories. They have to decide how much shall go to Britain, how much to Greenland, how much to Alaska, how much to Newfoundland, how much to Brazil, how much to Panama, how much should remain at home—with the result that mere driblets are passed around to each.

And the present lack of arms to carry out present American commitments is just as grave as the arms problem of Great Britain in the Mediterranean.

Nazi Strategy.

IN THE MINDS of U. S. military and diplomatic strategists, there is no doubt that the United States will be called upon to defend the Western Hemisphere. The steps which Axis agents have taken in organizing German and Italian groups in Latin America is convincing proof of that.

Furthermore, most of the European countries so far taken by Hitler have large populations, no raw materials. Czechoslovakia, Austria, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, France are among the most densely populated countries in the world; and what Hitler wants most is raw materials and room for expansion.

Just across the South Atlantic lies Latin merica, the least populated great reservoir of raw materials in the world. U. S. strategists have figured out pretty carefully the manner in which Hitler will move against the Western Hemisphere—providing always he can first cut down Britain.

He will make an oblique attack—first against Brazil nearest the bulge of Africa. Then against Venezuela, Colombia, the Panama Canal. Bombing the Panama Canal, President Roosevelt has disclosed to advisers, simply cannot be prevented by the U. S. army, provided the enemy wants to sacrifice enough planes. Its closing would freeze the U. S. navy in one ocean or the other.

If Japan and Russia staged simultaneously attacks at Alaska, Peru, or Mexico, U. S. forces would be just as widely dispersed as are British forces today.

That is why defense strategists are so thoroughly convinced that the great hope of the United States is to keep the British fleet on guard in the Atlantic. For the British fleet today, as never before, is the first line of American defense.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Here in simple chronological form is the history of one of the most impressively dramatic performances I have ever heard.

It began in the summer of 1940, when Alice Duer Miller wrote a poem called "The White Cliffs of Dover." Shortly after it was published in book form—it is now second on the non-fiction best seller lists—Frank Black read it and became so enamored of its strange beauty that he composed a musical background for it.

Then, last October, against Black's musical background, Lynn Fontanne read it over the air. It was such a stunning, climactic performance that at a later date it had to be repeated.

Ronald Colman heard it and immediately purchased the movie rights to it. Who ever heard of anybody buying the movie rights to a poem?

IN JANUARY this year Miss Fontanne again read "The White Cliffs of Dover" in Cleveland, with Black directing the Cleveland Symphony orchestra. Her delivery was so beautiful and heartbreaking that those who heard her sat stunned in silence.

Then Miss Fontanne was asked if she would record the poem for Victor. Never before had she made a recording, but she acquiesced. For the full recording three 12-inch records were required. It is out now, in a special album, and to me it it the most inexpressibly beautiful thing I have ever heard.

FINIS FARR, formerly a gag writer for George Jessel, which perhaps explains a lot of things, is also a playwright and the author of the feature "Mr. District Attorney."

Recently his press agent requested a few smatterings of biographical material, and Farr obliged. Like this:

"Farr is entirely self-educated and was graduated from Princeton in 1926. He spells with difficulty and, when reading, mouths the words quietly to himself. During the first World war Farr did absolutely nothing, as he was only 12 years old. He plans to do nothing during the World war No. II, unless otherwise instructed by Local Board 15. Signed, Finis Farr."

AT THIS writing "Gone With the Wind," as a film has grossed more than $22,000,000 at the box-office and its producers expect it to hit the all-time high of $35,000,000 before it is finally laid away.

When I think of these amazing sums of money I can't help but remember the $50,000 that was paid Margaret Mitchell for the screen rights. Only the other day Edna Ferber received $175,000 for the screen rights to her serial "Saratoga Trunk." The Mitchell price seems only an infinitesimal drop in the bucket, surely the best "buy" in all screen history. Though, of course when the deal was transacted nobody knew that "Gone" would be the sensation it has been.

A Farmer's Diary

Early Wildflowers

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THIS EVENING I walked through my neighbor's woods. The moist leaf mould was like a soft, resilient carpet. About my feet and up the spacious hollow as far as eye could see were bloodroot colonies.

Half way up each stem two large round leaves, one on each side, seemed to clasp hands. The milk-white petals with their center of yellow gold were held much higher. Spring beauties, fresh as morning dew, overran the farther stretches of woods.

I saw the half grown stem of jack-in-the-pulpit; the hardy single buds of the windflower; a clump of hepatica hiding behind a rotting stump. Three lovely, perfect lavendar blooms were on as many tender curving stems. Buds were on early shoots of wild ginger.

Pointed brittle stalks of mayapple were pushing up to the light; three light green unfolding leaves of the trillium and colonies of sweet williams had just emerged from the surface of the leaves. Purple and yellow violets bloomed in great profusion.

I sat down on the cool damp mat of leaves among this lovely race of wild flowers and was strangely humble. The fairy hand of early spring had touched these fruitful hollows and left the flowers. I felt the ecstasy of moistened buds, the peace and quiet that brings forth the gentler moods of mind and soul. My hour was complete—I asked for nothing more.

I reluctantly left the silence of the woods, its beauty and its bloom—for like rare companionship, it would not be well to tarry long, but to return at intervals and experience that delightful atmosphere again.

I recrossed the old worm fence and left each flower upon its tender stem—but carried home with me the tone, the color, the delicate allure of the peaceful woods where faint odors rise like incense.

NAZIS IN LAST DRIVE TOWARD GREEK CAPITAL

British Give Up Thermopylae But Claim Heavy Loss Among Enemy.

antiquity, would not be occupied until it could be entered without bombardment — as Paris was taken.

The Luftwaffe, meanwhile, continued to concentrate on the ports and shipping of southern Greece in furious bomb assaults.

The Greek government reported Nazi air raids on harbors scattered along the southern coast and on Greek islands offshore. It said two hospital ships had been sunk and a refugee vessel bearing women and children to island sanctuary from the war had been bombed and set afire, killing many.

German commentators said the Nazi high command claimed a total of 89,000 tons of shipping—all in readiness to carry the B. E. F. and its equipment back to Egyptian bases—had been sunk by German air raiders in three days.

The aerial war also continued over the English channel.

The British said their planes attacked naval bases in northwest Germany overnight and the Germans said theirs sank three merchant ships totalling 14,000 tons and damaged another of 4,000 tons—presumably in a convoy off the British coast—and raided an English south coast city.

There were no reports in Britain, however, of any concentrated air attacks such as had been made on Plymouth during the previous three nights and no air alarm sounded in London.

New Repulse of Nazis at Tobruk Revealed

CAIRO —(U.P.)— Another strong Axis attack on besieged British forces at the Libyan port of Tobruk was repulsed Thursday with heavy enemy losses and capture of 127 officers and men, including Germans, British general headquarters said today.

Among the prisoners were two officers, the communique said.

Report Britain Will Seek to Hold Crete

LONDON—(U.P.)—Great Britain intends to hold the Island of Crete, 70 miles south of the Greek mainland, it was understood today. Hopes were expressed that with the aid of the British navy, the British and Greeks would be able to hold or seize other important islands in the Aegean sea, including the Italian Dodecanese.

It was said in well informed quarters that the British expeditionary force had not started to evacuate Greece but that with the remaining Greek forces it continued to hold fast a line extending down from the Thermopylae area to the Gulf of Corinth.

This meant that the Allied line had been bent back on the left to the greatest possible extent in order that a short line might be held. Reports from Athens said that the Greeks, on the left flank, had withdrawn from the Agrinion area of southwestern Greece and this was taken to mean that, with the British, they had already taken a new line farther south and east, anchored on the gulf.

It was admitted that the fight for Greece was nearing its end.

old youths would be called. The names would be added to the present selective service rolls.

It was predicted today by army officials that about 60,000 selectees will be inducted into the army monthly after July 1. The army plans to draw as many of them as possible from the younger group of registrants, officials said.

They pointed out that the younger men are more desirable because they are more adaptable to training, they are generally healthier, they have fewer dependents, and most of them are not engaged in essential defense jobs.

PROPOSES TAX LEVY TO EQUIP FIRE FORCES

Council's Finance Committee Acts as Result of Poor Operation of Trucks.

At the $100,000 fire at the Home Materials company lumber yard Sunday night, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton deplored the lack of modern, efficient fire fighting equipment, classing most of the pumpers as "rattle traps." Only one of the pumpers was purchased in the last three years. The next in line was purchased over 17 years ago.

During the lumber yard fire, an antiquated hose truck from No. 3 engine house was the only protection for more than 10,000 homes in the city.

Firemen were forced to put all of their 6,000 feet of hose into use Sunday night. Nine hundred feet ordered since early February has not yet been delivered. Hose company officials have informed the city that most of their production is being shipped to England for use in combatting fires started by Nazi bombs. They also stated this week that delivery would probably not be made for at least 60 days.

Since Sunday pumpers have broken down on three runs. The pumper engine from No. 4 collapsed Tuesday and yesterday answering flare-ups at the Home Materials lumber yard and No. 3's pumper was put out of commission at a lumber kiln fire at the lumber yard of C. C. Constance on Newville road Tuesday night .

No. 4's booster motor ceased operation Tuesday when a motor pin was sheared off. Yesterday the truck motor stopped dead, making it necessary for firemen to spread hose by hand to distant fire hydrants. The booster will be out of commission for the better part of a week.

No. 3's pumper booster also cracked up when the chain of the booster motor parted under the strain of the Constance fire. After making four half-mile trips to a hydrant at the city-line, the pumper was forced to call upon the city's newest pumper to take over the task.

Mansfield is paying a $50,000 penalty annually for its inefficient equipment because its department does not measure up to standards set by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, city officials said. After repeated warnings which were unheeded, the board placed Mansfield in the sixth premium class.

Crafton said earlier this week that with the improved water line system and better water pressure, only a better equipped fire department was needed to seek a reduction in insurance rates.

The service director said the financial plight of the fire department showed the city was suffering from "growing pains." He pointed out that the city has increased in population and demands on the department have grown annually yet the city's general fund has not been bolstered in a comparative degree.

Today, Mansfield, a city of nearly 40,000 population one of two cities in the nation that has doubled its population in the past 20 years—has purchased only one new piece of fire equipment in the past 18 years.

Three years ago, a new pumper was purchased, the only dependable piece of apparatus in service in the entire city. The balance is from 18 to 26 years old. Parts for the trucks, obsolete models, must be sought from junk dealers, since no factory still makes them.

CAPTURE LAST OF PRISONERS

Canadians Announce Seizure of Escaped Nazi Near Heron Bay.

WINNIPEG, Man. — (U.P.) — The last four of 28 German war prisoners who escaped from a northern Ontario prison camp last Saturday have been captured, it was announced today.

The four prisoners were taken in the Heron bay district, about 50 miles from the camp. Two were captured last night near Medicine Hat, Alberta, nearly 1,000 miles from the camp. It was believed they had hoped to reach the west coast, and board a ship for Asia, returning to Germany overland.

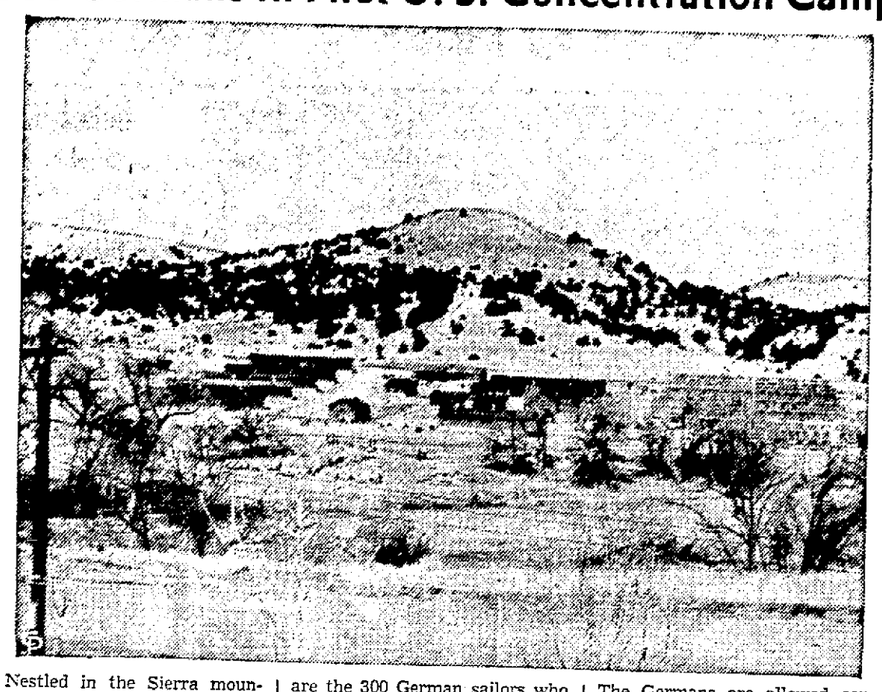
300 Germans In First U. S. Concentration Camp



Nestled in the Sierra mountains near Fort Stanton, New Mexico, is the first concentration camp established by the United States. Confined in it are the 300 German sailors who scuttled their ship, the German luxury liner Columbus, off Virginia last December to prevent the British from capturing it. The Germans are allowed considerable fredom, being permitted even occasional exploration trips into the mountains. They are being held "for the duration."

ice office for use in placing the graduates in jobs, Handley said.

The employment office is receiving more calls for skilled industrial workers than it can fill and it is expected that some of the 1941 graduates will be trained at the NYA camp at Charles Mill lake for skilled jobs, Handley added.

He said nearly 800 boys will be enrolled at the federal camp this summer where they will be paid $30 a month for part-time work while they are receiving training. Of that amount $15 will be deducted for board and room at the camp.

Youths enrolled at the camp will receive training in sheet metal work, automotive mechanics, pattern making, woodworking, and other trades for which there is a demand now.

Handley pointed out that a few jobs will be available for youths on the shop building projects at Plymouth and Ontario high schools in Richland county and the Marengo school in Morrow county.

Pupils who take commercial and industrial jobs during the summer must obtain social security numbers at the office in the Richland Trust building or the postoffice, Sam F. Smith, jr., acting manager of the social security field headquarters in Mansfield, asserted.

A social security number is necessary even for temporary jobs since the number must be used by the employer when he pays the social security tax to the collector of internal revenue, Smith says. Numbers are not necessary, however, for students who work on farms.

the various ordinances. Mansfield, according to statistics, is now paying the highest rate charged by the Ohio Public Service company and is being offered the lowest.

Elyria, Sandusky and Lorain sent ordinances which are the same as that offered here. The company has offered a five-year contract ordinance which would save local electric users more than $70,000 yearly. Zanesville, served by the Ohio Power company, said that she had no rate ordinance. Marion, served by the Marion Reserve company, forwarded an ordinance.

The Marion rates call for a bill of $4.10 for a hundred kilowatts. Mansfield's present bill for the same is $4.30 or 20 cents per hundred more. If the new ordinance is accepted by council, Mansfield's bill for a hundred kilowatts will drop to only $4.02.

FDR ASSERTS PATROL WILL SAIL 7 SEAS

Tells Press Conference That Vessels Will Operate Wherever Necessary.

would do if it encountered a belligerent vessel, and whether it would be allowed to use belligerent means was not made clear.

The president did say a patrol would not necessarily be confined to the Atlantic. He was asked exactly what was the difference between a convoy and a patrol. In the first instance, he said, it is the escorting of merchant ships in a group to prevent an act of aggression against those merchant vessels.

A patrol, he explained, is a reconnaissance of certain areas of the ocean to find out whether there is any possible aggressor ship in the area, or in the wohle of the ocean, that might be coming into the western hemisphere.

As a matter of common sense, Mr. Roosevelt said, back in 1939 the area of patrol in the Atlantic was closer in because there seemed to be little danger of attack on such places as Bermuda, Newfoundland, Greenland, or Trinidad.

Since then, he continued, events have shown an attack is more possible today than it was then. Furthermore, the president said, the United States has valuable American lives and property located where it did not have them in 1939.

He spoke of Greenland, Newfoundland, Bermuda, of Canada which the United States has obligation under the Monroe Doctrine to protect against any non-American nation, and of the Bahamas, Antigua and others of the British West Indies, and British Guiana, where this country also has established bases.

(Greenland has been formally embraced within the hemisphere defense system.)

The president was told that three of his cabinet officers seemed to be concerned over aid to Britain, and he was asked how this tied in with his press conference remarks. He said he did not know. And he dodged a question whether the country had anything better in mind, than a convoy system, to insure delivery of war supplies to Britain.

Secretaries Hull, Knox and Wickard all spoke vigorously yesterday of the need of seeing to it that American aid is made truly effective.

A reporter asked: "Won't we have a safe road to Greenland?"

The president said he hoped so, and that he hoped there would be no more acts of aggression.

'I SAW ENGLAND,' ON SHELVES AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

London Correspondent Tells of Observations During Bombings of England.

PM's London correspondent, Ben Robertson, authors another absorbing tale of England today in "I Saw England," a new book now in circulation at the Mansfield Public library.

In England from June, 1940, until Christmas eve, Robertson lived through the blitzkrieg and visited Scotland, Coventry, Birmingham, Ireland and Dover His book is a personal narrative of his observations and experiences.

BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS by Winston S. Churchill is a presentation of his picture of the European debacle right down to the fall of France—and his speeches, papers and comments on events of the last two years bring home to us the catastrophe which has brought the world to the verge of ruin.

WOODROW WILSON THE FIFTEENTH POINT by David Loth, author of Alexander Hamilton, is a timely biography of the First World war president. Loth paints an eloquent picture of the principles of peace Wilson fought (and died) for, and the whole is based on the President's actual memoranda and reports.

CAMBRIDGE BIBLIOGRAPHY OF ENGLISH LITERATURE IN FOUR VOLUMES was presented to the library by the Memorial Library board in memory of Helen Fox, one-time librarian.

OTHER NON-FICTION ARMY IN REVIEW by Erickson, ANNUAL OF BOOKMAKING, DEEP THROUGH THE HEART by Anderson, FOUNDING OF AMERICAN CIVILIZATION by Wertenbaker; MONROE DOCTRINE by Showman and Judson, PROGRESSIVE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL by Lane; I AM; BIBLE AUTOBIOGRAPHIES by Lnsign, MODERN FRENCH PAINTERS by Wilenski; SECRETS OF CARTOONING by Thorndike.

In his new novel, the USURPER, Harry H. Kroll centers the story around Stan Butterworth, notorious for his miserliness, and lays open the social and economic life of the cotton grower It was seeing Lacey McFerrin again that caused the seeds of ambition to spring to life and from that hour the life of cottontown became by stages inevocably bound up with his destiny. It is an exciting and absorbing tale with a vital interpretation between the poor white and the planter classes

In THE SHIP AND THE SHORE, Vicki Baum takes six characters, and shows how their experiences with each other during one night on a little South Seas island changed the whole pattern of their lives They were passengers on a little boat bound for Sebang—and when it chugged away the next day, the lives of all, after that strange night, were changed and molded to a new form.

MY THEODOSIA by Anya Seton is a highly romanticized tale built about brilliant, unscrupulous Aaron Burr, who was perfect in his daughter, Theodosia's eyes. The authenticity of parts may be questioned, but the man's sensational career, his enmities and ambition, his daughter's loveless marriage, all combine to make a good story.

OTHER FICTION: LEGACY by Bonner; BEST BRITISH SHORT STORIES 1940 ed. by O Brien, KEEP MURDER QUIET by Jepson.

BUCYRUS — Individual 18-inch trophies and a huge 40-inch team trophy were presented to the co-champion Bucyrus high school basketball team at a banquet at the Weaver hotel recently.

The trophies were the gift of Walter J. Michael, local manufacturer, who also was host at the banquet. Michael's son, "Mike" was captain of the championship team.

The large trophy, which will become a show piece in the high school trophy case, bears names of players and the individual trophies carry names of each player and his position.

"I'm another Bride thanking Camay for helping me to a Lovely Skin"

—Says Mrs. F. Martin Smith, Jr.

Every woman can benefit from Camay's greater mildness—even many women with dry and delicate skin.

MRS. F. MARTIN SMITH, JR. is tall and slender, with chestnut hair and grey-green eyes, while her skin is of flawless purity! Naturally such a skin calls for the utmost care—and so Mrs. Smith uses Camay.

Many women with sensitive skin prefer Camay's greater mildness!

A great many women, even women who feel they have a somewhat sensitive skin, or a dry skin, tell us they prefer Camay because of its superior mildness.

For now a great new improvement has made Camay milder than 6 of the other leading large-selling beauty soaps. We proved this superior mildness of Camay by actual tests. And skin specialists we talked to say that regular cleansing with a fine, mild toilet soap will help you to a lovelier skin.

Camay now comes in two sizes.

Try the new BATH SIZE Camay. It will make a hit with every member of your family. It's the same, new improved Camay in a larger, more economical size.

BATH SIZE Camay is more than half again as large as the regular complexion cake . . . gives you more than half again as much of this fragrant, free-lathering soap. Yet it sells at a popular low price, at a saving to you. Get a few cakes from your dealer today.

Mr. Smith and his bride have fun cutting the wedding cake. The reception was held in the Rose Room of the Algonquin, famous New York hotel. Afterward, this happy Camay bride and her handsome groom left for a honeymoon in North Carolina.

Mrs. F. Martin Smith, Jr., was married at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Jackson Heights, L. I. She wore a princess gown of white satin embroidered with seed pearls. Her cap, of French lace, had a coronet of seed pearls to match. Of Camay she says: "I'm enthusiastic about Camay because of its unusual mildness. Delicate skins like mine need an extra mild beauty soap and Camay's wonderful mildness makes it just right."

TOWN GIVES UP IN BEAVER WAR

New York Highway Department Loser in 18-Month Battle With Animals.

SAVONA, N. Y.—(U.P.)—An 18-month struggle between Sanford Lake beavers and the Bath Town highway department is nearing a showdown, with the industrious little animals the apparent winners.

Indications are the highway department is only too willing to retire from the scene after a year and a half of matching wits against the dam-builders whose idea of an ideal home included raising the level of the lake until it flooded a section of a little-used town road.

The fight between man and animal started in the summer of 1939 when a family of beavers began construction of a dam at the lake outlet to raise the water level and give them easier access to young saplings along the shore. Unfortunately, the outlet was near a road and within a few weeks the beavers' activities threatened to make it impassable.

Lindsay White, then highway superintendent, resolved to oust the little water folk. He had the dam torn out, only to find it rebuilt the following day. Then he built the road higher, but the ever-rising lake level encompassed that, too, along with a narrow isthmus which had separated the lake from a small duck pond.

For five months highway workers tried to discourage the beavers by tearing out their dam periodically. The road level was raised several feet. Finally, thoroughly discouraged himself, White applied for a state conservation permit to trap the animals. But even then the beavers proved too smart. They repeatedly covered the traps with mud, when they did not spring them for variety. They even built the dam over them.

The traps finally caught two of the beavers, but by this time public opinion was swinging in their favor. Recently Savona business and sportsmen decided the road was less valuable than the beavers and framed a petition to the town board requesting that the road be closed. No objections were raised.

Co-eds Advised Against Wearing Bright Colors

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa.—(U.P.)—Women should select becoming colors and not to fit the current styles, according to a Westminster college art professor.

Harold J. Brennan, head of the art department, told Westminster co-eds to observe the following don'ts:

Don't wear obvious, bright colors, wear subtle off-shades.

Don't fail to look at the color of a street dress by daylight before buying it.

Don't wear bright colors in large masses; wear them as accessories, such as a bracelet or a handkerchief.

Don't ask your girl friend about your clothes unless you're sure she will be frank with you.

Don't forget that texture is as important as color in determining the kind of clothes that look well on you.

Detroit Ready To Build Vast Medical Plant

DETROIT —(U.P.)— A $100,000,000 city medical center, with extensive hospital facilities for the exclusive use of indigent patients, will begin to take shape here when projected construction work is started early in the spring.

First of several individual units to be constructed will be a hospital and medical science building. Laboratory buildings, an out-patient hospital, women's and children's medical centers, a nurses' training school, and dormitories for staff members will be added as the plant is expanded.

Sponsored by the Wayne University Foundation, under the supervision of the university's college of medicine, the plant will be located on a campus overlooking the Detroit river, on the site of Detroit's old Memorial Park.

With buildings, equipment and virtually all operating expenses financed by funds from philanthropic agencies and private donors the huge plant will cost taxpayers only an estimated $325,000 a year for heat, light and janitor service.

NEW SHORTAGE

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—(U.P.)—One of America's foremost firefighters, Jay W. Stevens of San Francisco, believes municipalities may face serious fire equipment shortages as a result of the national defense drive.

Stevens, who is chief of the prevention bureau of the national Board of Fire Underwriters, warned that manufacturers of fire trucks and similar vehicles have been ordered to give priority to war machines.

ROLL CORRECTED

CALGARY, Alta.—(C.P.)—Believed killed in action in the Great War and his name struck off the books of the lodge he had attended before going overseas, Lieut. Col. F. E. Stewart Dunn, Edmonton, Alta., appeared at a session of his lodge here and paid his dues of $6.

9703

By MARIAN MARTIN

For the matron with really "womanly" proportions there's comfort, flattery and gaiety in this versatile Marian Martin Pattern 9703. In its street-length versions, it will make either a frock or a smock; in longer style it becomes a housecoat. The princess-line is flattering: the straight up-and-down seams are quick to cut and to stitch up—and especially becoming to the up-to-size-fifty figure. That full-length front buttoning is decorative, too, with its spirited scalloped edge. The sleeves may be short or long; the collar and optional cuffs are smart in self-fabric or crisp contrast. If you're active about the house, you'll need all three versions of this quick-to-stitch style.

Pattern 9703 may be ordered only in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 dress requires 5 yards 35 inch fabric and ⅜ yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"What letter?" I parried, but feebly, for I knew there was no possible chance of appeasing, with so feeble an excuse, the suave young gangster sitting opposite to me.

"I suppose you're entitled to one question like that," he said with a grin that would have been engaging except for an expression in his eyes that sent an icy ripple down my spine. Then with his voice changing to its former iciness, he snapped out another order.

"Give me that letter," he said, "unless you want some rough handling you won't like."

I threw back my head and looked at him steadily, thankful that my dress concealed my shaking knees.

"I won't pretend any longer that I don't understand you," I told him. "But I can't give you the letter. I haven't it in my possession."

A Final Warning.

"You're lying," he said flatly. "I warn you now, you're only piling up trouble for yourself. I'll give you thirty seconds. If you don't hand me that letter by the end of that period, I'm going to take it from you, and the process won't be very pleasant. Just look around you. It won't do you a bit of good to scream. Nobody outside the car would hear it, and that old dodo down front is either too deaf to hear it through his sleep, or he'll be too dead to know what it means, if he does hear it and starts to do any chivalric coming to your rescue."

There was a dreadful finality in his voice which gave me a feeling of utter despair. My fingers tightened upon my little silencer pistol, and for the fraction of a second I was tempted to send a bullet into that cruel smiling face. But I found that I could not do it, and I made one last desperate effort to convince him I did not have the letter.

"Please use your common sense," I said tartly. "Suppose I do have the marvelous memory of which you spoke. Wouldn't it be the height of folly for me to keep a letter in my possession, with the danger of its being stolen, when I could memorize it down to the last comma, and carry it in my head."

"You may be speaking the truth," he said, "and then again, you may be lying. We'll soon find out."

With an incredibly swift movement, his hand shot out and pressed down upon the handkerchief at the top of my bag, under which my hand was gripping my little silencer pistol.

"I thought so," he said with a glint of malicious satisfaction in his eyes. "Nice little pistol you have there."

He pulled the covering handkerchief away with his other hand, working carefully with palpable precaution lest the pistol go off accidentally. Then he gave me a sardonic little grin.

The Search.

"And you really thought you could get away with it," he said. "You might, at that, if you weren't such a soft-boiled baby. You could have plugged me a minute ago, although the chances were all against your hitting me."

"If I had pulled that trigger, you would not be talking now," I said, and despised myself for the tremor of pure rage in my voice.

"Don't take it so to heart, Babe," he advised me with a low insolent laugh, then he adroitly twisted my fingers away from the pistol, swept it into his own hand, and put it on the seat beside him. Then he grabbed my bag and inverted it, strewing the contents upon the seat beside him.

"No letter there," he said with a searching glance at my belongings. Then he whipped out of his pocket a gleaming stiletto.

"I'll just make sure there are no hidden pockets in this thing," he said.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT WAS HIS REASON?

That is a pretty good question to ask whenever the opening leader picks something different from what you expected. Was he trying to give his partner a ruff, because he held so many in the suit he led? Was he hoping to get a ruff himself, because he had just a singleton or doubleton? Was he trying to knock an entry out of the dummy? Or to stop ruffs by your side? Or to avoid leading away from guarded honors elsewhere in his hand? Somewhere among these or similar questions will lie the answer, unless he was merely making a fancy lead hoping for either a break of luck or the chance of befuddling you.

	♠ K 8 6 ♥ A J 9 7 3 ♦ 2 ♣ A K Q 10
♠ 10 5 2 ♥ K Q 6 4 ♦ 10 8 7 6 3 ♣ 3	W. N. E. S.	♠ Q ♥ 10 8 2 ♦ K Q J 9 5 ♣ J 7 5 2
	♠ A J 9 7 4 3 ♥ 5 ♦ A 4 ♣ 9 8 6 4

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	2 ♦	2 ♠	3 ♦
3 ♥	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass

North could hardly be blamed for reaching out for the grand slam when he learned his partner had the aces of both spades and diamonds, via the Blackwood convention, though the bid was a bit risky. He had been through a disastrous evening of rubber bridge, and wanted to catch up with a nice grand slam premium. Unfortunately, he placed too much trust in his partner's playing ability.

West led the club 3 and South began to play without making any plan. He took it with dummy's A, led to the diamond A and returned his other diamond for a ruff, led to the spade K and was happy to see the Q drop, then raked in the spade A and J to settle the hostile trumps. When he played now to the club K, West's failure to follow suit showed him he was beaten, as he later had to lose a club trick to East.

If South had studied a bit after the club lead, he would have wondered why West did not lead his partner's diamond suit. Surely it could not be because he had four of them. It must be because he had a singleton. Regardless of which it was, South could have set up a fifth round heart by embarking on a ruffing process at once, hoping for the kind of suit division he really found in hearts. After three ruffs, the J would have been good for a discard of the fourth club in South's hand, and the contract would have been made.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 9 4 ♥ A J 10 9 7 4 2 ♦ Q 5 ♣ 7 5

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

If North gets into 5-Hearts on this deal, doubled by East, who leads the spade 7, how should the hand be played to make the contract?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, April 26.

The affairs of this day seem to respond to astral influences that may be responsible for dramatic crises or major reversals. However, there are signs of a favorable character which may be brought to bear on difficult and dangerous culminations. With alertness, efficiency, souhd principles and worthy objectives such hazardous elements may be composed. By the exercise of restraint, calm judgment, patience and practical measures, difficulties may be turned to good account. A particularly keen mind with flashes of intuition or clever invention may save the day.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of year of far-reaching reversals, in which common sense, perseverance, sound tactics and acumen, backed up by clever mental ability or flashes of intuition may avert calamity. Rash and reckless conduct of any kind, running counter to the will of elders or superiors, might accent difficulties. Beware of physical dangers and violent emotions.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Legends of Broadway.

(No. 6—Masters of Ceremonies)

ON Broadway, they are a strange brotherhood who never meet, because if three gathered together each of the three would be afraid that the other two would steal his gags.

If you are a dyed-in-the-wool Broadwayite, or if you are a gay-minded visiting fireman, you probably like masters of ceremonies; if you hail from the haughtier East Side, they undoubtedly bore you. They are glib and flip and fast, and sometimes funny.

They are experts at the rib and heckle, and a few of them are most hilarious when the audience is as cold as a clam's heart. There are still some of the brotherhood around, but their peak has passed. They were louder and funnier during the Prohibition Era.

There was a lad named Walter O'Keefe.

He came out of Notre Dame with a degree, an urge to sing like a thrush, and a tongue triggered with biting Irish wit. He sang one night at a smoker in The Bronx, and big Larry Fay heard him. Fay liked the song and he liked the voice, and when he heard the young lad had written the song himself, he offered him a job. "I've got a place—the Texas Guinan club on 48th street. Give you fifty bucks a week."

O'Keefe took the job.

After a week he was an unhappy fellow. This Texas Guinan woman wouldn't let him finish a song. When he'd get to the climax, she'd step out on the floor, interrupt him with a broad wave of her arm, and shout to the customers: "Listen suckers—you think he's good, don't you? Well, he is—but here's what you're paying for. Come on out, my little pigeons!"

And out would troupe the Guinan cuties. And off to a corner would go Walter O'Keefe.

It took him a whole week to get the answer. Then, on a Sunday night, he went to work. The place was jammed. In the middle of a song, Texas jumped up with her heckling routine—but Walter was ready.

When she waved her arm at him, he waved right back. When she shouted, "Listen, Suckers!" he shouted, "Listen, Suckers!" too. Every time Tex said something, he mimicked her. She was stymied and she knew it. So she let him finish the song and Walter got the first big hand of his engagement.

This is a story about Dan Healy, but John Steele has a part in it.

Dan's hoofing in the Broadway show was only a prelude to the job he really loved. Almost every night, after the curtain rang down, Dan would put on his tails and top hat and take a cab down to a parish house where one of the priests who were Dan's friends was running a little benefit show for the needy of the neighborhood.

Father Steve Flaherty and Dan were riding the subway back to New York from the far stretches of Brooklyn one night after one of the benefits. It was early in the morning, and only five passengers rode their car, one of them a young Italian boy about 18.

Suddenly the boy pulled out a pocket knife, sprang the ugly, long blade, and leaped onto the seat shouting, "I'm going to kill myself!"

Father Steve yelled: "Don't, don't!"

Dan never could explain why he did what he did then.

All at once he began dancing a soft shoe dance in the aisle of the subway car. And his voice began crooning John Steele's famous song, "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody."

The would-be suicide and the priest and the other passengers stared in stupefaction.

Dan just kept dancing and kept on singing.

Pretty soon the boy dropped his knife and began to weep.

He told Dan and the priest a story familiar to both of them—no job, no prospects, and an unhappy girl.

But he couldn't kill himself while a handsome, black-haired fellow was dancing in the aisle of the subway train, singing that lovely song, "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Mel-o-dy."

That was Dan Healy's top performance as an m. c And it had a happy ending. Father Flaherty got the Italian boy a job driving a milk truck, and got Dan ten more benefits to play that month.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—With no apparent faith in the notion that three strikes is out, Spencer Tracy and Victor Fleming and company are working behind the usual elaborately closed doors on the third movie version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

ROBBIN COONS

"Jekyll and Hyde" is no new idea with the pair who, ever since they got together on "Captains Courageous," have been looking for some picture they could do together off conventional paths. In the figuring, they began warming up to the Stevenson classic two years ago, have been threshing it over ever since.

"What we've set out to do," says Fleming, the director, "is to make Hyde believable. With Tracy, I knew it could be done."

Just how they're doing it is the reason for the closed set—the first in Tracy's long career as an open-door advocate. Rumors about his Hyde make-up have ranged from "none at all" (as Tracy originally desired), to "He's using everything—fright wig, buck teeth, and hunchback."

John Barrymore, who with "Jekyll and Hyde" in 1920 made his movie transition from slapstick comedy to "serious" drama, went all-out on the Hyde make-up. Frederic March, who won an Oscar for it in 1933, went Barrymore better by a couple of fangs. Fleming and Tracy, falling back on the fact that Stevenson in his book gave no definite physical description of Hyde, are tackling the evil-in-man character in their own way.

In the original story there was no "romantic interest" though both picture and stage versions have had women figuring prominently. Fleming and Tracy are conventional here—though the casting has been done "against type": Ingrid Bergman, usually the noble heroine, is playing Ivy Pearson, the barroom singer who becomes the victim of Hyde's sadistic affections. Lana Turner, usually the torrid modern oomphy is the sweet, lady-like though spirited, fiancee of Jekyll.

OHIO ASSEMBLY VOTES MEDICAL HELP SERVICE

Insurance Plan Would Be Set Up In Communities Where Doctors Agree on Plan.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — An attempt to solve the doctor bill problem of Ohio's low income families was made today by the 94th general assembly with the passage of the Mahoney bill, providing for a voluntary low-cost medical care plan.

It is an insurance plan, designed to give full medical and surgical services in homes, doctor's offices and hospitals to members of families with incomes of not more than $2,400 a year, and to single persons, without dependents, who earn $1,800 or less.

While operating details remain to be worked out by the Ohio State Medical association at its annual meeting in Cleveland June 2, experience in other states, which have similar plans, indicates that the cost to subscribers would average about $2 a month for single persons, $3 50 a month for man and wife, and $4.50 a month for a family including any number of dependents under 19 years of age.

These monthly premiums would assure full payment of all physicians' and surgeons' fees, covering all medical and surgical needs except actual hospital expenses. The state already has authorized hospitalization insurance plans and upward of 1,000,000 Ohioans now are protected in this respect.

The Mahoney bill provides for the creation of a non-profit corporation in each community, to be licensed by the state. Subscribers would contract for the services of physicians and surgeons and would be free to designate the doctor of their choice from the list of those participating.

Before the state would issue a license to any corporation in a given community, 51 per cent or more of the professional medical men practicing there would have to agree to participate. To assure adequate service, not more than 500 subscribers would be accepted for each doctor enrolled.

The house also passed a bill to end "pupil piracy"—the practice of one school district appropriating students of another in order to collect daily attendance funds from the state. The bill provides that school foundation funds shall be paid only to the district in which the student resides, regardless of where he attends school.

BOMB BLASTS FOOD MARKET

FBI Investigates Threatening Letters Following Night Explosion in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Federal bureau of investigation agents and city police today investigated threatening letters received two years ago by Ettore A. Zannoni, 52, following the bombing of his big food market and wine store.

Heard over most of the west side, the blast—at 2:45 a. m. today—caused an estimated $5,000 damage to the store building and stock and shattered windows in 30 neighboring homes and business establishments.

Five persons asleep in suites above the market and an adjoining cafe escaped injury when glass from broken windows showered over their beds.

Zannoni said the first of two threatening letters was mailed to him early in 1939, shortly after he opened the west side store.

Written in Italian and bearing a sketch of a dagger piercing a heart and a skull and crossbones, the note said: "If you want to live with your wife and family, move your store immediately."

Zannoni said he dismissed the threat as the work of a prankster, but when he received a similar letter a week later he turned it over to the FBI.

186 OHIO 'OBJECTORS' TO GO TO SPECIAL CAMPS UNDER PLAN

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—State Selective Service Director Chester W. Goble said today that the 186 Ohioans who have been classified as conscientious objectors will be sent to special camps just as soon as they have been set up.

Goble and other state selective officials conferred yesterday with 50 representatives of the national service board for religious objectors.

Under proposed plans, churches will pay expenses of their members who are sent to the special camps. They will feed and clothe them and provide other essentials at a cost estimated at $35 a month per man.

Conscientious objectors will spend their year of training in special conservation, reforestation and soil erosion work at the camps. None of the camps have been opened to date by the government.

Ohio's 186 objectors have been placed in Class 4-E. They object to both combatant and non-combatant service. Other objectors who are opposed only to combatant service have been inducted into the army and assigned to non-military tasks.

Holmes county, which contains the state's largest population of Amish and Mennonites, has produced 71 conscientious objectors to date—40 per cent of Ohio's total. Fifteen have been classified from adjoining Wayne county.

BOARD ACTS ON LICENSES OF 2

Revokes One, Suspends Another In Ashland County.

The state board of liquor control today revoked the liquor license of one Ashland county tavern proprietor and suspended another license for 10 days.

The license of Samuel Cooper, route 58, Montgomery township, was revoked on charges of illegal possession of liquor and providing music at his establishment after midnight.

The board suspended the license of Delbert J. Schafer, Mifflin, for 10 days on charges of illegal sale of bock beer and having entertainment at his tavern after midnight.

Laff-a-Day

"Hurry it up, bottleneck!"

Principal H. J. Dotson of John Simpson junior high school, one of the city's inveterate fishermen, is telling this story on himself: The other day Dotson went on his first fishing trip of the season, taking his little granddaughter with him. He fished most of the afternoon and caught nothing. About the time he was ready to quit and go home, another fisherman a short distance away caught a nice one and dropped it in his creel. The little granddaughter watched the proceedings closely and then noticed Dotson had no creel with him. "Grandpa," she asked, "where are we going to put the fish we catch?"

Gilbert Wiegand, ringmaster for the Y. M. C. A. circus, introduced a "horse and elephant" act last night at the opening performance of the circus under the impression that the act was a "clown" stunt, with the actors masquerading as animals. Weigand's "spiel" told of the wonderful act the "horse and elephant" would present. He was somewhat surprised when the "horse and elephant act" turned out to be a gymnasium horse and parallel bars, set up for a demonstration by a gym team.

Wood street residents were still chuckling today over an incident that involved two neighbor women and an alarm clock. It happened like this: Mrs. Donald A. Tucker, 510 Wood street, broke her alarm clock before retiring the other night, so she phoned her next door neighbor, Mrs. Paul English, to have her awaken her at 7 next morning. Mrs. English was not at home, so Mrs. Tucker told a maid to leave a note containing the necessary instructions for Mrs. English. The note, it developed, read, "Mrs. Tucker broke her arm and wants you to stop over at 7 o'clock in the morning." Sympathetic, Mrs. English called a half hour earlier, at 6:30, started breakfast for her "injured" friend and then went to her bedroom to offer any further assistance. There was a puzzling two minutes for both women, and then they broke into hearty laughter when they realized that the maid had mistaken the word "arm" for "alarm."

LOOT MACHINES

Thieves Break In Gas Station, Leave Bloody Fingerprints.

Howard H. Hassinger, 151 Gibson avenue, manager of the Shell service station at 321 Park avenue east, reported to police today that thieves had stolen $39 in cigarets and cash from the station during the night.

Hassinger said that entrance was probably made by breaking a window on the east side of the building. The cash register was opened but contained no money. The burglars broke open cigaret machines taking both the money and cigarets in them.

Police are investigating the burglary. E. C. Fuller, identification superintendent, said bloody fingerprints were discovered about the door of the station evidently left by one of the burglars who cut himself while breaking open the machines.

SEEKS REGISTRATION

COLUMBUS — (U.P.)—The senate today received a bill by Rep. Willis J. Cory, R., Seneca, which would require osteopaths and osteopathic surgeons to register annually with the state medical board. The house passed the measure yesterday by a vote of 113 to 1.

WOULD DIRECT FDR TO CUT NON-DEFENSE

Bi-Partisan Group Ready To Act as Ways To Raise New Tax Are Talked.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Stunned by the treasury's proposed $3,500,000,000 tax program, a bi-partisan movement was launched in the house ways and means committee today to attach a "rider" directing President Roosevelt to slash non-defense expenditures by $1,000,000,000.

The drastic proposal was discussed as members recoiled from the stiff income tax boosts on low income groups urged by the treasury to help pay for the huge cost of rearmament.

Meeting in closed session today with the public to be invited to hearings next week, members of the committee searched for substitute proposals for the treasury program.

One group of members tentatively suggested a tax on imports. This would mean a tax on coffee and sugar and was flatly rejected by treasury experts as being productive of little revenue.

Despite Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's proposal for strict economy in non-defense expenditures, little hope for cuts was held out by congressional leaders in charge of fiscal affairs.

"I don't know about cutting appropriations," said Rep. Taylor (D.-Col) chairman of the appropriations committee. "We hold them within the budget. But they talk about cutting farm appropriations when farmers are writing in and saying that they can't make both ends meet."

A committee group, headed by Rep. Disney (D.-Okla.) called upon the treasury for detailed figures on money which could be raised by a two per cent general manufacturers' sales tax. A tentative estimate of $800,000,000, providing there are no exemptions, was given the committee.

Imposition of a pay roll tax was flatly turned down by treasury experts as being unfair. The treasury also fought a general sales tax.

The treasury's plan for hiking excess profits tax will not be drawn up until next week, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Sullivan said. He expects to recommend a $400,000,000 tax.

The money, he said, could be raised either by lowering credits now allowed corporations or by reducing the rate of return at which the excess profits tax begins.

Critical questioning of treasury experts by committee members forecast a long and bitter fight on the tax program.

Dad In Night Club Two Hours, Police Find His Son, 4

Mansfield police were called on last night for the second time in a week to make a search for the parents of a child left in an auto.

The child, a boy of 4, was found by police wandering on East Fifth street near Main shortly after 9 p. m. A check-up in the vicinity failed to find the parents, so patrolmen brought the boy to headquarters.

More than two hours later, the boy's father arrived at the station to claim him. He told police that he had left the boy sleeping in the auto while he went into a night club "to talk to someone." After two hours of "talking," he discovered the boy missing.

Police said that the child evidently awoke and left the car, trying to find the father.

Last Saturday, another child was found locked in an auto on North Walnut street. Its parents were admonished in court Monday on their carelessness and lack of responsibility. Police last night gave the father of the boy a lecture and handed the child over to him.

CHAPTER II

Then suddenly her face showed dismay. She wavered, "I—I forgot. I haven't a cent with me. But just a second—I'll give you a check."

She fumbled around in her bag again, asking, "To whom shall I make it out?"

"William — Bill Anderson," he told her, sounding dubious.

"Heavens! I can't find my checkbook, either! I was sure I had one in this bag! Have you a blank check?"

'So that's the way it is! Why didn't you say so before I filled your tank? I thought you didn't waste much time climbing back into that car. Thirteen's your unlucky number all right, Miss—Miss . . ."

'Stone!" she snapped furiously. "What's the use? Any name you give is probably a phony."

He held the pistol up again. "Now, you'll do as I say! Get out of that car—and tell me where you stole it!"

* * *

"But the driver's license—read it!" exclaimed Raye angrily.

Bill Anderson's eyes were filled with accusation. "Yeah? Well, we'll see about that!" he said, still keeping her covered with the ugly, squat pistol.

"Oh, you're stupid! Will you put away that awful gun! My driving license is in there." She indicated a compartment in the instrument panel. "I'm Raye Stone—twenty—blue eyes, blond hair—address 2931 Parkway Road, Wilville. For goodness sakes—read it and be convinced!"

He flashed her a look that indicated that he wanted desperately to believe her and slipped the pistol back into a pocket. He told himself that he never had seen such a swell pair of blue eyes. They'd done something to him already and he couldn't quite figure it out.

Reluctantly, he turned from those blue eyes and opened the small compartment. His fingers fumbled around among road maps, dusters, broken pencils, chocolate bars and gum, finally finding a card.

He drew it out half suspiciously and read it by the faint light of dawn.

He pursed his lips thoughtfully an instant, then said severely. "You could easily have memorized this information, of course. Having blue eyes and blond hair, you could get away with it You're bright enough for that, all right."

"Bright?" she repeated, in amazement.

Other men she'd met always began by telling her how breathtakingly beautiful she was. And this—this impossible . . .

* * *

Another car slid into the drive and pulled to a halt beside Raye's coupe.

Hal Bedford leaped to the ground and ran up to her.

"What's the trouble?" he inquired in astonishment. "Where's Hank Lancaster?"

Raye smiled wryly. "How should I know? He didn't take me to the party—I drove myself there." She added quickly and triumphantly, "Kindly tell this Mr. Anderson who I am."

"Why—er—you're Raye Stone—the one and only Raye Stone! I get it! You're buying gas. Allow me!"

"No, thank you, Hal—I've already purchased the gas. I'm only trying to—to establish credit."

Hal's hearty laugh rang out.

"That's a hot one! Say, Anderson—if Miss Stone craved it, she could probably buy a big hunk of the Empire State building."

Raye flung the crimson-faced Bill Anderson an exultant glance, switched on the ignition and shot her car out the drive before either man could utter another word.

The yellow coupe whizzed down the highway like a comet.

"I—I hate him! I hate him!" declared Raye vehemently. "Such impudence from a gas station attendant!"

With the back of one hand she wiped tears of vexation from her eyes.

"You're good, Raye Stone," she told herself disgustedly. "Getting so worked up over a common fellow like that! Just as if you had nerves or something—when you've been disgustingly healthy all your life!"

Raye had always been wilful and moody and difficult to please. After this encounter with the first man who had ever dared to ignore her good points, she appeared to be even more so.

She decided it must be her affair with Hal Bedford that was wearing her down. Things moved so slowly. It would be months before Hal would be free to marry her and, even as much as she loved him, she was beginning to wonder if he had a weak, cowardly streak. Was he afraid of Ruthie—or what-Why couldn't he have it out with her and end this wretched suspense?

She made out a check to Bill Anderson the day after the party She sealed it in an envelope, then impulsively threw it into a drawer of her desk. Let that smart aleck wait! Let him simmer! It would do him good!

For a few days, she flitted as usual from one social function to another, trying, she assured herself, to waste a great deal of time, so that her intense love for Hal wouldn't completely floor her. Yet she kept recalling that tousled-headed Bill Anderson, the result being a composite picture of a man with Hal's fervent adoration and Bill Anderson's arresting smile. It was rather ridiculous.

Then one lovely sunny morning she started out in her blue limousine with Grove, her chauffeur, at the wheel. She had a grand plan that surely would put a certain presumptuous person in his proper place.

To make it look casual she stopped at Rosalind Grinner's and played tennis with a group of girls. Then she invited all eight of them to lunch with her at Henry's Inn, a quaintly exclusive place out on the highway leading directly past the gas station managed by one Bill Anderson.

The girls in gay-colored halters and shorts made a veritable nosegay of color in Raye's long powerful car. The day was proving to be a record-breaking one for heat. Even with the car windows down, it was close and sultry and the breeze stirred by the speeding car did little to offset the sun's glare.

So it was not out of keeping for Raye to say as they neared Bill Anderson's station, "My throat's absolutely parched! How about something cold to drink?"

An eager chorus of acceptance greeted this suggestion.

Raye added casually, "Try the next filling station, Grove. They should have cold bottle stuff there."

"Yes, Miss Stone," said Grove.

And within a few minutes he was dexterously sending the big car around that winding drive Raye hadn't been able to put out of her mind

Bill Anderson came from the station office with businesslike stride. Even in his oil-spotted overalls, there was a sort of purposefulness, a poise about him that was arresting and not lost now upon nine pairs of pretty feminine eyes.

"Gas?" he inquired of no one in particular.

"Something cold to drink, please," came loftily from Raye.

Her cool, blue eyes defiantly met his surprised gaze as she got out of the car.

She walked up to him, lovely in her white play suit, a vivid contrast to her tanned round arms and legs. The short curls around her determined little face were reddish-gold now under the sun and her cheeks, held high, showed crimson beneath their coat of brown.

"I believe this squares everything, Mr. Anderson," she told him, holding out a slip of paper.

Slight color crept into his long, lean, serious face. He took the check and pretended to read it.

'Yes—thank you, Miss Stone," he said succinctly

He folded the check once and stuck it into the breast pocket of his overalls, his keen gray eyes averted.

Rosalind Grinner, always avidly interested in new men, came up now, saying naively, "Are your drinks really cold, Mr. Anderson? If there's anything I hate its lukewarm stuff."

Raye was thoroughly exasperated. Rosalind, having overheard the young man's name, was about to make the most of it and actually get acquainted with him.

"I hope my bar can turn out perfectly good ice-cold drinks," laughed Bill, making Raye still more incensed.

He wheeled to a little cart behind him, announced what he had in stock, and began taking out bottles and deftly uncapping them

He had served every member of the party, including the chauffeur standing on the far side of the car, before he deigned to notice Raye again.

"Oh, excuse me, Miss Stone," he said, looking as if he were hugely enjoying some little private joke. "I suppose you'll like to be included."

"At your convenience, of course," she flung back.

Her face flamed. She had come here purposely to put this young upstart in his place and he had actually managed to turn the tables on her!

Tansy Blume, a cut little freckled-face redhead, piped up with, "This certainly touches the spot. It's exactly what my wilted disposition needed!"

"I second that!" put in Lottie Neff, a tall brunette who agreed to everything with maddening regularity.

The girls were all circling around Bill now Raye set her bottle with a bill under it on the cart and walked away without a backward glance.

HERO

Mongrel Dog Repeats Role In Life Saving.

PHILADELPHIA – (UP)— Proving himself a hero is becoming a habit with Pal, a mongrel dog owned by John F. Colbert, Jr.

Only four days after he received a medal for his heroic action in arousing his master's parents when Colbert was overcome by gas in the kitchen of his home, Pal saved another life.

While out for a romp during a snowstorm, Pal leaped at his master, barked, and ran ahead, trying to attract attention, but Colbert thought the dog was excited about the snow. Finally, the dog succeeded in getting James Covington, a filling station attendant to follow him.

Pal led the way across the street where Covington discovered James Morgan, 27, unconscious in a snowbank. At a nearby hospital, where Morgan was treated for exposure physicians said the man might have died had he not been found by the dog.

Woman at 103 Long Devoted To Hard Candy

HAMILTON, Mont. – (UP) - Mrs Gertrude Peterson—"Grandma Great" to her great-grandchildren—munched her usual hard candy as she moved on toward her 103rd year of life.

Mrs. Peterson, a native of Norway, once made her home in Oregon but now lives here with her daughter, Mrs. V. O. Blood

Mrs. Blood said her mother, who continues to eat three meals a day, has consumed a pound of hard candy "every week of her life," and that this may have something to do with her longevity.

The aged woman still eats meat and potatoes but milk has replaced the coffee she once drank six times a day in accordance with Scandinavian custom. She spends her days in bed or in a bedside chair, pulling herself upright by grasping a long cloth strip.
